SOLUTION ON SHANTUNG IS NEAR; HARDING TO TAKE HAND

President Will Do Utmost To Make Settlement Satisfactory

JAPAN TO RECEDE

Tokio May Abandon Plan To Compel China To Accept Loan

By Frederick William Wile
(Trans-Pacific News Service Exclusive to the China Press)

Washington, Jan. 26.—President Harding today intervened in the Shantung controversy. Accompanied by Secretary Hughes, Minister Alfred Sze called on the President at the White House and discussed the Shantung matter for more than an hour. The Chinese minister found the President amazingly familiar with the minutest details of the question and sympathetically inclined to do his utmost to bring about a settlement which China would find satisfactory.

President Harding indicated to Minister Sze that he would move immediately in the direction of mediation, but did not say in what way he would proceed.

It is now stated definitely that the Japanese will recede from their insistence on a loan to China for the purchase of the railway. The Tokio Government is still demanding installment payments instead of cash on the nail.

MAY JEOPARDISE ALL

Following the White House Conference, the American delegation announced that a settlement of the Shantung question awaits only the adjustment of an "infinitesimal difference."

President Harding's anxiety for a settlement of this question is an expression of the administration's well known belief that Shantung constitutes the acid test of the whole Chinese end of the Conference in the opinion of the millions in America, and that unless it is adjusted to the satisfaction of the American people the whole result of the Conference will be jeopardised in the Senate.

Secretary Hughes said tonight the Conference agenda is now virtually ended except for the appointment of a commission to inquire into Pacific cable and radio communications.

A plenary session of the Conference waits upon the adjustment of a few naval and Chinese questions, and it is likely that the end of the present week will see a windup of these issues so that the work of the Conference can be completed about a week hence.

MATTER OF HOURS NOW

Washington, Jan. 30.—Formal announcement has been made that a complete settlement of the Shantung question is only a matter of hours. Negotiations are now hanging by the slender thread represented by the nationality of a traffic manager for the railway for the first five years. All other details have been agreed upon. It is understood that the Japanese are absolutely unyielding in their demand for a Japanese traffic manager, and that the Chinese, while they have not yet acceded to this, will ultimately do so. Japan's pledges to get out of Shantung province and permit the Chinese to buy the railway after five years is held to be unequivocal.

It is denied that President Harding, Secretary Hughes and Arthur Balfour, head of the British delegation, are exerting pressure on the Chinese, Minister Sze having told representatives of the press that his last meeting with President Harding was at his own request.

STATEMENT OF SZE

"I went to the White House to appeal to President Harding in order to get the best settlement possible for my country," he said. "My government asked if I had done everything possible, whereupon I decided to ask the president again for his views upon the Shantung question, and what he considered the views of the American people to be. The president was friendly and sympathetic and I found the interview very helpful."

It is known that American officials take the stand that Japan has made great sacrifices in waiving a loan and accepting treasury notes instead.

While there is no high authority for stating that Japan

Shackleton Dies From Heart Disease On Antarctic Voyage

SIR ERNEST SHACKLETON

(Reuter's Service)

Montevideo, Jan. 29.—Sir Ernest Shackleton died on board the Quest on January 5, from acina pectoris. The Quest was off Gritvicken (?) when Sir Ernest died. The body was brought here in a Norwegian steamer and will be trans-shipped to England, accompanied by the expedition's surgeon, Dr. Hussey.

The second-in-command, Commander Frank, will take over charge of the Quest. The expedition proposes to carry on.

London, Jan. 29.—The Quest left Rio de Janeiro for South Georgia on January 18, and is proceeding direct to the Antarctic.

DEATH IS SUDDEN

(Reuter's Service)

Montevideo, Jan. 30.—Sir Ernest Shackleton died while the Quest was anchored off South Georgia.

He was slightly indisposed on the night of January 4 and retired to bed. Dr. Hussey and others stayed in his cabin throughout the night. At 3.20 a.m. on January 5 he began to sink rapidly and died within three minutes, despite all the efforts of Dr. Hussey.

The body was placed in a zinc shell, enclosed in a wooden coffin and was transferred on January 17 to the steamer Professor Cruvel which brought it to Montevideo, where it received military and governmental honors. The body will probably be embarked on the steamer Andes for England.

The President has cabled his condolences to their Majesties and to Sir Ernest Shackleton's widow.

(Reuter's Service)

Montevideo, Jan. 31.—A squad of Uruguayan soldiers is carrying out the solemn duty of acting as guard of honor to Sir Ernest Shackleton's body, in its rough wooden coffin in the hospital here, until it is taken to England on February 11.

An account of the explorer's illness and his last hours is told by Dr. Hussey, who states that Sir Ernest Shackleton suffered with neuralgic pains all the way from Rio de Janeiro but rejected the suggestion that he should return for treatment.

When the Quest reached Gryvicken, South Georgia, Sir Ernest Shackleton, without delay,

Grand Ball This Evening Winds Up Program Here For Shriners' Delegation

Party From States Has Busy Visit, Initiating Big Class, Sightseeing And Attending Banquet, Bazaar And Other Functions

A grand Shrine ball and supper at the Astor House tonight will mark the conclusion of the three days' program arranged in connection with the halt made here by the touring Divan of Shriners which has come to the East to conduct the second ceremonials ever held away from American soil.

Since their arrival by the steamer Keystone State Monday afternoon the visiting caravan has had a busy time in Shanghai, putting a class of seventy-one neophytes across the scorching sands which intervened between them and the cool of the Oasis, attending teas and dinners, seeing the sights of the city and accumulating Chinese wares at the Nomad Oasis bazaar and Carnival held at the Astor House yesterday afternoon and evening.

The party on arrival was met by the China Shriners, who paraded to the dock and escorted the visitors from Nile Temple and other temples in the States ceremoniously to the hotel, headed by the Arsenal band. After a brief halt the Shriners marched on to the Town Hall, where during the remainder of the afternoon and early evening the candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the order.

MANY ATTEND BANQUET

A banquet followed at the Astor, which has been made Shrine headquarters during the divan's stay. There were some 250 in attendance for the feast, which was presided over by Mr. F. W. Van Buskirk, president of Nomad Oasis, as toastmaster. The speakers included Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell, of Seattle, Illustrious Potentate of Nile Temple of that city; Past Potentate John Rex Thompson; W. H. Irvine; Joseph A. Stern, of Zem Zem Temple Erie, Pa., who is honorary life member of the Imperial Council; D. G. Tomasini, Past Potentate of Al Kade Temple, of Portland Oregon; W. T. Alexander, Mr Don D. Patterson and others.

As president of Nomad Oasis Mr. Van Buskirk received from the Illustrious Potentate the Shrine Jewel from Nile Temple and the latter was presented with a suitably inscribed loving cup by members of the local Oasis

Yesterday's program was monopolised by the bazaar and carnival, described in the prospectus as "grand, scintillating, stipendous," and so on, and coming well up to those promises. The Chinese shops being closed in connection with the New Year festivities it was thought the visiting Shriners and their party might be disappointed by inability to look over and invest in the various Chinese art wares and fripperies so dear to the tourists' heart. These were present in bewildering and colorful abundance, from mandarin gowns to jade earrings and ivory carvings. In addition there were stalls handling articles of Western sort, and all within a setting of Oriental splendor.

BAZAAR DRAWS THRONG

The bazaar was opened at 11 a.m. and the big dining and dance hall of the hotel was thronged throughout the remainder of the day, while the lobby held an overflow crowd almost equal in numbers. Harry Kerrey's, the Astor and the Municipal orchestras dispensed music and though the size of the crowd practically precluded dancing there was tea and the spirit of carnival was unflaggingly in evidence.

Delegations of the visitors made several excursions about the town during the day, inspecting a Chinese theater and going to a Chinese tea, where typical Chinese dishes were served.

This morning there are to be other sightseeing expeditions and this afternoon the Divan and other members of the party will be taken to the Kiangwan races.

The ball will begin at the Astor House at 9:45 o'clock, and will be followed by a supper at 12:30. Tomorrow the delegation will leave by the Keystone State for Manila where they will be guests of Bamboo Oasis and will stage another ceremonial and visit the Manila Carnival.

Snow Crushes Roof Of Movie Theater; 112 Dead, 134 Hurt

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 30.—The number of dead in the Knickerbocker Cinema Theater disaster is now estimated at 112 and of the injured at 134, of whom only 14 are seriously injured.

President Harding has sent a message of sympathy in which he says that the tragedy, staged amidst a great storm, has deeply depressed all.

SNOW CRUSHES ROOF

Washington, Jan. 29.—The capital was today blanketed by one of the heaviest snowstorms in its history. The railways stopped running. Pennsylvania Avenue is littered with wrecked motor-cars.

The snowstorm paralysed official business. The Senate and the House of Representatives adjourned owing to the fear of the members that they would not be able to return home. The meeting of the two committees of the Disarmament Conference had to be postponed.

At least 69 persons were killed and 100 injured by the collapse, under two feet of snow, last evening of the roof of the Knickerbocker Cinema Theater, one of the finest in the city. The accident occured in the middle of the evening, during the screening of a film based on the play "Get Rich Quick Wallingford." Without warning, the roof crashed in with a thunderous noise and carried the strongly constructed balcony to the ground. The rush of compressed air created by the falling mass hurled people near the entrance into the street.

MANY HURT MAY DIE

Many of the injured are not expected to survive. It is believed that several persons are still in the ruins. Amongst those injured was Signor Asseneto, third secretary of the Italian Embassy. It is feared that some prominent people were amongst the victims, as many Government officials reside in that district.

No members of the British Embassy were present at the theater.

Later: There were 500 persons present at the theater. Only a few escaped uninjured. Saws and gas torches were procured and holes punched in the fallen roof at intervals, through which the dead and injured were laboriously removed. Private dwellings were turned into hospitals and a church into an improvised mortuary.

The rescuers worked all night extracting the groaning and injured victims many of whom were limbless. Some could only be rescued by amputation. Pathetic scenes occurred in the streets. Relatives were waiting all night in the bitter cold, scanning the faces of the rescued victims, the disappointed ones subsequently filing disconsolely to the church to examine the long rows of dead bodies.

Turkey's 'Joan Of Arc' May Be First Woman Ambassador To U.S.

HALIDE Edith Hanoum, former Secretary of Public Education in the Turkish Nationalist Government and the Leader of the feminist movement in Turkey, is being mentioned in cable dispatches as being likely to be appointed the first woman Ambassador to the United States. She is now the Manager-in-Chief of the Turkish Red Crescent (similar to the Red Cross) and is organising a Turkish Woman Battalion to aid Mustapha Kemel Pasha's army to fight the Greeks. The photo shows her riding astride, quite at variance with popular conceptions of Turkish women.

Alas Poor Soochow! Thy Beauties Are In Shanghai

By Elsie McCormick

Previous to the Chinese New Year holidays, our idea of Soochow was principally that of a place for native tourists to drop off the train and buy more watermelon seeds. We had heard indefinite rumors to the effect that the chief insect pests there were donkeys, the donkeys being so small that anyone over 110 pounds gave them curvature of the spine. We understood also that it was a favorite place for Shanghai Chinese to park Number Two wives who might otherwise turn the matrimonial duet into a trio and ruin the harmony.

When we visited the city a few days ago, we saw the watermelon seeds and a few of the donkeys, but somehow missed the Number Two wives. From many sources we had heard that Soochow ladies are the most beautiful in China. After viewing some of the beauty-prize contestants in the streets, however, we have decided that just as all the best California oranges are in New York, so all the most charming Soochow flappers are in Shanghai. The girls we saw peeking coyly from doorways had visages of the type that look best at a masked ball, the features of most of them being as irregular as a French verb.

TRANSPORT MODERN

Our second disillusionment occurred when we cantered down the horse-road in a carriage trimmed for the holiday with flowing red streamers and shiny Christmas tree ornaments. We had not expected to travel in a carriage, our idea of sight-seeing in Soochow being mixed up with sedan-chairs and the donkeys. After passing through a gate in the wall to the city itself, we were greeted by a deputation of ricsha coolies and the information that the steps on the canal bridges having been smoothed down a few months ago, wheeled traffic could now negotiate the city streets.

Though we missed our tour on the back of Soochow's famous insects, we found out more things about the possibilities of ricsha travel than we dreamed of even on those Shanghai thoroughfares that have as many different degrees of depression as a Suicide Club. A street in Soochow is just wide enough for three eels to march abreast. In addition, it has more ups and downs than the first year of married life. It may be true that the City Fathers smoothed off the bridges, but they somehow overlooked several thousand little stone steps and others not so little that sit innocently in the middle of the thoroughfares, just waiting for a ricsha to come along. After losing two fillings from our teeth, we decided that the City Fathers and ricsha men were both subsidised by the local dentists' guild.

ONE TOBOGGANS

Besides, every canal bridge is at the crest of a hummock down which the brakeless but not unbreakable ricsha speeds at a rate of three mangled pedestrians a minute. When two ricshas meet on the highway, foot travelers take refuge in the nearest doorway while the leg-power chauffeurs decide the right of precedence by a system of geneology. The man who works back to the seventh generation first gets the right of way. We didn't do much sightseeing in ricshas, our time being taken up principally to clutching the handle of our umbrella and wondering how they would dispose of the remains, if any.

Soochow is a proud old city, conservative to a degree and ever mindful of the fact that for five hundred years it was one of the Chinese capitals. In Wusih, the residents take pride in showing visitors the city's factories; in Soochow, they show him the pagodas. The only evidence we noticed of modern commercialism was a Rice and Bean Cake Exchange, which, considering the reputation of certain local stock exchanges, may or may not be a wreath of daisies on the brow of the city.

Every time a rich man of the ancient regime had a few spare decades on his hands, he built a pagoda. Judging from the number scattered over the countryside, building pagodas must eventually get to be a habit, like having one's hair cut or going to the movies or getting dresses trim-

are hereby notified that from Today, February 1st a

in which the rates are substantially higher, will go into effect.

The present tariff has been in force for nearly three years, and although the cost of production of The China Press has steadily increased during this period, advertisers have not been asked until now to pay higher prices for their publicity. The cost of newsprint has declined but the saving effected thereby has been largely offset by the fall in exchange; all other running and upkeep expenses show a heavy increase.

In taking note of this increase in rates, which is more than justified by the large and growing circulation of The China Press, advertisers are asked to compare the rates in the new tariff with those quoted (? obtained) by other Shanghai newspapers who do not deem it expedient to publish an audited statement of circulation.

Inquiries regarding the new tariff and conditions under which current contracts may be renewed, should be addressed to The Advertising Manager.

GENOA MUSTN'T TOUCH VERSAILLES TREATY IS WARNING OF VIVIANI

Its Mutilation Or Even Discussion Would Be Held Intolerable By France Says Former Premier—Must Have Guarantees As To Treaty, Reparations And Soviet Russia's Assumption Of Debt He Asserts

SETTLE "OVER HERE" FIRST SAYS U. S

American Opinion Leans To Need Of Achievements In Washington Before Trying To Solve Questions Of European Economics And Finance At Genoa

BY RENE VIVIANI
(Former Premier of France)
(Special To The Public Ledger And THE CHINA PRESS)

Paris, Jan. 30.—All France is asking whether the Genoa conference will be held and what the nation's attitude toward it will be.

Obviously, any mutilation of the Versailles treaty, or even its discussion in such a gathering as it is proposed to call together at Genoa, would be intolerable to France. France will never permit such an impious act as that.

Have they written into the invitation that the Versailles treaty is to be discussed and all other treaties respected? No such conditions will be acceptable to France. We must have guarantees, which must provide, first, absolute deference to the treaty of Versailles. Second, that Germany must pay, and that the only question shall be over the manner of payment. Third, full assurance that Soviet Russia will assume the debts of the government that preceded it, and not only promise to pay, which is easy, but guarantee payments.

Under these conditions France will welcome the Genoa conference with that clearness of mind and method and with that disinterestedness which she always has given evidence.

Without these guarantees what good will it be to France to accept the invitation to attend the Genoa conference?

4,000 INDIANS RIOT; POLICE KILL 2, HURT 40

Armed Gurkhas Aid In Quelling Mob; Under Brick Barrage

(Reuter's Service)

Calcutta, Jan. 30.—Four thousand mill hands were involved in a riot yesterday at the jute-mills in the environs of Calcutta. The riot originated in a demand for the release or two millhands who were arrested for assaulting the manager of a mill.

The police were called in and fired in the air. The crowd replied with a shower of brickbats, injuring an inspector and 12 policemen, whereupon the police fired on the crowd, killing two and wounding 40 of the rioters.

BARRAGE OF BRICKS

Calcutta, Jan. 29.—Police, accompanied by Gurkhas armed with rifles were sent to break up a crowded public meeting of non-co-operators here today, who refused to budge. The police, on being attacked were obliged to charge the mob through a barrage of brickbats. Many were injured on both sides. Some five hundred arrests have been made.

REPEAL LAWS

Delhi, Jan. 29.—Speaking at a meeting of the Council of State Mr. Mongomery, the Home Secretary, declared that the Government would introduce bills repealing nearly all of the repressive and restrictive laws with the exception of the deportation laws which Mr. Montagu was considering.

"Over Here" First Is Washington Demand

By Frederick William Wile
(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 28.—It has been announced definitely from the White House that America's delay in accepting the invitation to attend the Genoa conference is linked up directly with pending developments in Washington. The impression has been definitely conveyed that the United States is not inclined to do business "over there" until certain of the European and Asiatic nations exhibit more of a willingness to do business "over here."

The question of Soviet Russia's participation in the conference is also bulking largely in the Harding administration's deliberations. There is said to be some division in the cabinet over that question, with Secretaries Hughes, Hoover and Mellon repeatedly holding fast to the idea that any meeting with the Soviet's representatives would be tantamount to a recognition of the present Russian government, and that this is out of the question so far as the United States is concerned.

It is also probable that Hughes and Harding are awaiting the action of the Washington Conference on the Siberian question, which is the next topic on the Far Eastern agenda. In this connection it will be recalled that Secretary Hughes proclaimed that the Washington conference has a "moral trusteeship" over Russia.

That is held to mean that the American Secretary of State believes the United States is morally bound to hold all of Russia's old territory inviolate for the liberally Democratic government which America hopes will eventually gain control in Russia. If America's hopes respecting Russia are carried out by the Washington Conference it is believed that President Harding and his Secretary of State might be inclined to adopt a friendlier attitude toward the forthcoming parleys at Genoa, at which Lenine and his delegates will be present.

Baron Shidehara is understood to be returning to Japan after the Conference, in order to have an operation performed, after which it is expected he will return to his post at Washington.

NOW LOOK TO FRANCE

London, Jan. 24 (delayed).—Mr. Lloyd George discussing the upbuilding of Europe problem before the national liberal party meeting in London, recommended frequent conferences and an open exchange of opinions between the Powers as the most effective means to bring about reconciliation of the European nations.

If all nations' statesmen go to the Genoa Conference animated by a peaceful spirit, he says, results with regard to world peace will be obtained, while the peoples themselves will demand decrease of armaments.

Referring to Mr. Lloyd George's speech the Times declares Mr. Lloyd George in urging the restoration of peace all over the work explained neither more nor less than Great Britain's foundamental standpoint. In England nobody underrates the great value of the Genoa Conference.

The Observer points out that France is able to bear postponement of Europe's reupbuilding while England is unable to do so. M. Poincare's statements show that France's unreserved cooperation at Genoa cannot be depended upon.

England, however, must come to a decision whatever France's attitude may be. The period of mutual insincerity must come to an end. If France is unwilling to co-operate with Britain, it is preferable that the Entente ceases to exist, both in word and deed.

OPPOSITION STRONG
(Reuter's Special Service)

London, Jan. 30.—Newspaper correspondents at the Washington Conference sound a note of warning against taking the Senate's ratification of the treaties for granted, and draw a parallel between present conditions and those prevailing in 1919 when President Wilson was unable to secure the passage of the League of Nations. Fresh complications have undoubtedly been introduced by the Genoa conference and are strengthening opposition to the Washington treaties, not because the treaties are dependent on what is done at Genoa but on account of the fear, repeatedly voiced in recent Senate debates, that Europe is using America for her own purposes.

The Morning Post correspondent finds another obstacle in the bitter propaganda which is at present being carried on against Japan. The correspondent declares that Britain is also a victim of these attacks. The Administration is aware of the injustice of this campaign, but certain Republican Senators are asking whether the President has not blundered and whether they ought not to abandon him in self-preservation, while the Democrats are sitting on the fence.

The present lull in the Conference proper is likely to be succeeded by interesting proceedings, since the week's program includes the problem of how best to deal with the various resolutions and declarations regarding China and the drafting of the Shantung treaty. Both the foregoing items are on today's agenda, while the question of the Twenty-One Demands is expected to come up in a few days time.

The Times declares that the course of the discussion can be predicted with certainty. Japan will withdraw the five most obnoxious of the demands and will refuse to discuss the extension of the Liaotung lease to 99 years.

TO APPOINT DELEGATES
(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 28.—The Conference has decided that the Five Powers shall appoint two delegates each within three months to sit after that period as a new conference to discuss methods to secure world-wide adherence to the new warfare regulations and to determine whether the existing international law covers the agencies of war which have developed since the Hague Convention of 1907, and also to consider necessary changes so as to bring the regulations up-to-date.

JAPS TO CUT ARMY
(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Jan. 27.—In the Diet tomorrow, the Kokuminto Party will introduce a resolution urging the Government not to lose time in submitting a concrete plan for land disarmament, which is imperative for a wiser appropriation of the national revenue. The step recommended by the Party includes the cutting of the Army by one half or reducing the conscription period to one year.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 31.—It is understood that the only outstanding naval issue, that relating to the Kurile Islands and the Aleutian Islands was settled at today's meeting of the Naval Committee.

It is believed that the agreement provides for no increase in the fortification of those islands. Under the Fortification Agreement, Great Britain will be permitted to fortify Singapore and the islands around Australia and New Zealand.

Two plenary sessions are being held on February 1.

New Year Holidays Put Heavy Strain On Nanking Railway

The Traffic Department of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway have had a very strenuous time in coping with the exceptionally heavy traffic during the Chinese New Year holidays. On Wednesday, 25th, 1,190 passengers left Shanghai by the 7:45 fast train, but this number was far exceeded by the 9:50 a.m. train, which took away no fewer than 4,103 passengers. There was no diminution in the numbers traveling on Thursday, and on Friday it was only with the greatest difficulty that stock was arranged to make up the ordinary and relief trains.

The capacity of the engines and rolling stock are taxed to the extreme limit with the normal traffic, but the frequent heavy demands for extra accommodation, especially at the week-ends, general holidays, feasts, etc. makes the task of the officials a particularly difficult one.

The Quaints

Standing room only was available to late comers at the Lyceum Theater last night when the Quaints roused one of the largest houses in recent months to paroxysms of laughter and tumults of applause. From the rise of the curtain on the first number in which the Quaints introduced themselves, although no strangers to Shanghai audiences, to the grand finale, there was not a dull moment.

The fun was fast and furious but not the slightest vulgarity or joke of the near-risque pattern intervened to taint any number on the program. Not that the performance was pedantic or "highbrow," but just clean wholesome funmaking that roused gales of laughter.

Miss Mavis French took the first solo number and her songs delivered in excellent voice were well received as were the piano offerings of Miss Dorothy James. Then came the chief fun-maker, Mr. R. B. Salisbury, whose comedy work surpasses anything seen in Shanghai for many a moon. He it was that started the audience on its landslide of laughter and for a time it seemed as though some of the portly ones, men of course, might have to be carried out to recuperate from their uproarious mirth.

Later in the program, Mr. Salisbury and Guy Fane put on a bit of merriment entitled Alf's Coffee Stall which roused just as much enthusiasm. Other numbers in the second part included Ivan Campbell and Mr. Fane in a skit on the Halls, Harold Farrar in topical songs with Hugh Bayley at the piano. All members of the company were far above the average so that it is difficult to give a separate meed of praise, but Miss Jessie Hitter in her impersonation of the bedizened youth was a close second to Mr. Salisbury in the applause and laughter that greeted her act.

The bill for tonight will be Patch Work, and judging from the size of last night's house, it will take quick work on the part of the theater goer to get a seat.

Japan Told To Get Out Of Siberia Within One Year

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 25 (delayed).—At yesterday's meeting of the committee on Pacific and Far Eastern questions, Siberia still being the subject under discussion, Secretary of State Hughes made the following statement:

"The American delegation has heard the statement of Baron Shidehara and has taken note of the assurances given on behalf of the Japanese government with respect to the withdrawal of Japanese troops from the Maritime Province of Siberia and from the province of Sagnalien.

"The American delegation has also noted the assurance of Japan by her authorised statement that it is her fixed and settled policy to respect the territorial integrity of Russia and to observe the principle of non-intervention in the international affairs of that country as well as the principle of equal opportunity for the commerce and industry of all nations in every part of the Russian possessions.

"These assurances are taken to mean that Japan does not seek through her military operations in Siberia to impair the rights of the Russian people in any respect or to obtain any unfair commercial advantages or to absorb for her own use the Siberian fisheries or to set up an exclusive exploitation either of the resources of Saghalien or of the Maritime Provinces.

QUOTES NATIONS' PLEDGES

"Baron Shidehara pointed out that the military expedition of Japan to Siberia was originally undertaken in accord and in co-operation with the United States. It will be recalled that public assurances were given at the outset by both governments of a firm intention to respect the territorial integrity of Russia.

"I should like to place upon our records for transmission to the conference the purposes which were then clearly stated by both governments."

Mr. Hughes then read from public declarations made by the United States and Japan in July and August, 1918. He then continued:

"The United States of America withdrew its troops from Siberia in the Spring of 1920 because it considered that the original purposes of the expedition had either been accomplished or would be no longer observed by continued military activitity in Siberia.

"The American government then ceased to be a party to the expedition, but it remained a close observer of events in Eastern Siberia and has had an extended diplomatic correspondence upon this subject with the government of Japan.

VIEWS NOT ALWAYS ALIKE

"It must be frankly avowed that this correspondence has not always disclosed identity of views of the two governments. The United States has not been unmindful of the direct exposure of Japan to Bolshevistic Siberia and the special problems which the conditions existing there have created for the Japanese government, but it has been strongly disposed to the belief that the public assurances given by the two governments at the inception of the joint expedition nevertheless required the complete withdrawal of Japanese troops from all Russian territory, if not immediately after the departure of the Czecho-Slovak troops, then within a reasonable time.

"As to the occupation of Saghalien in reprisal for the massacre of the Japanese at Nikolaevsk, the United States was not unimpressed by the serious character of the catastrophe, but having in mind the conditions accepted by both governments at the outset of the joint expedition of which the Nikolaevsk massacre must be considered an incident, it was regretted that Japan should be necessitated to insist on the occupation of Russian territory as a means of securing a suitable adjustment with a future Russian government.

LEADS TO MISCONCEPTION

"The general position of the American government is set forth in her communication to Japan of May 31, 1921. In that communication appears the following statement: 'The government of the United States would be untrue to the spirit of co-operation which led it in the summer of 1919 upon an understanding with the government of Japan to dispatch troops to Siberia, if it neglected to point out that, in its view, continued occupation of the strategic positions in eastern Siberia, involving the indefinite possession of the port of Vladivostok, the stationing of troops at Habarovsk, Nikolaevsk, and other important points, the seizure of the Russian portion of Saghalien and the establishment of a civil administration which inevitably lends itself to misconception and antagonism tends rather to increase than to allay unrest and disorder in that region of military occupation'.

"I am still reading from the note of May 1921: 'The military occupation in reprisal for the Nikolaevsk affair is not rudimentally a question of the validity of procedure under the recognised rules of international law'. The note goes on to say that 'the issue presented is that of the scrupulous fulfilment of the assurances given to the Russian people which were a matter of frank exchanges and of apparently complete understanding between the government of the United States and of Japan.

"'The reassurances were intended by the government of the United States to convey to the people of Russia a promise on the part of the governments not to use the joint expedition or any incidents which might arise out of the occasion to occupy territory even temporarily or to assume military or administrative control over the people of Siberia.'

"Further in the same note, the American government stated its position: 'In view of its conviction that the course followed by the government of Japan brings into question the very definite understanding concluded at the time the troops were sent to Siberia, the government of the United States must in candor explain its position and say to the Japanese government that the government of the United States can neither now nor hereafter recognise as valid any claims of titles arising out of the present occupation and control and that it cannot acquiesce in any actions taken by the government of Japan which might impair existing treaty rights or the political or territorial intergrity of Russia.

MIGHT CAUSE DISTRUST

"'The government of Japan will appreciate that in expressing its views the government of the United States has no desire to impute the motives of the government of Japan or the purposes of that government other than those which have heretofore been avowed. The purpose of this government is to inform the Japanese government of its own conviction that in the present time of disorder in Russia it is more than ever the duty of those who look forward to the tranquilisation of the Russian people and a restoration of normal conditions among them to avoid all action which might keep alive their antagonism and distrust towards outside political agencies.

"Now especially it is incumbent upon the friends of Russia to hold aloof from the domestic contentions of the Russian people, to be scrupulous to avoid inflicting what might appear to them a vicarious penalty for sporadic acts of lawlessness and above all to abstain from even the temporary and conditional inpairment by any foreign power of the territorial status which for them, as for other peoples, is a matter of deep and sensitive national feeling, transcending, perhaps, even the issues at stake among themselves.'

WILL REMOVE TROOPS

"To that American note, the Japanese government replied in July, 1921 by setting forth in substance what Baron Shidehara has now stated to this committee, pointing out that the conditions under which Japan had taken the action to which reference was made and giving the assurances which have been reiterated with respect to its intention and policy.

"While the discussion of these matters has been attended with friendly feeling, it has naturally been the constant and earnest hope of the American government—and of Japan, as well, I am sure—that this occasion for divergence of views between the two governments might be removed with the least possible delay. It has been with a feeling of special gratification, therefore, that the American delegation has listened to the assurance given by their Japanese colleagues, and it is with the greatest friendliness that they reiterate the hope that Japan will find it possible to carry out within the year fulfilment of her expressed intention of terminating finally the Siberian expedition and of restoration of Saghalien to the Russian people."

The Chairman then suggested that following resolution:

"Resolved, that the statements by the Japanese and American delegations in respect to the presence of foreign troops in Siberia be reported to the conference at its next plenary session to be spread upon its records."

Assent was unanimous.

When France was called upon, M. Sarraut said that he gave his full and unreserved adherence to the resolution. The French government would hear with feelings of gratification the formal assurance given by Japan concerning Siberia, and Japan's desire to withdraw her troops from Russia as soon as possible, its firm intention not to interfere in the domestic affairs of Russia, and its firm purpose to respect the principle of unity and also the integrity of Russia. France had full trust in Japan and it was quite certain that this assurance would be carried out.

ASK HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS SERIES OF TEST QUERIES

(China Press Correspondence)

Tsingtau, Jan. 23.—Chinese schools are all closed for the Chinese New Year. There is a big clearing out of workmen and other employees returning to their homes for this annual holiday. The Tsingtau Institute is going right ahead with their winter term, making progress. They have recently begun conducting a series of "intelligence tests." In the field of general knowledge how much does a high school pupil know?

The field covered embraces history, science, music, art, religion, and business. Each test has ten questions, which must be answered correctly to be reckoned as perfect. What was the result? They discovered that the boys in the high school department do not have a very extensive knowledge of the things which one does not usually learn from books. From this, the school is making other tests and discussions in the subjects in which the first tests were made.

In the first test, the boys averaged thirty three percent. One boy, James Collins, made the best grade, answering seven correctly, or seventy percent. Let the high school readers of the CHINA PRESS try these questions:

1. What is a caravan? 2. What does "Y.M.C.A." mean? 3. Who is the Vice-President of the United States? 4 What province is Shanghai in? 5 Where is the liver? 6. What does "mixed diet" mean? 7. When did the great war start? 8. What is a "bill of lading?" 9. What is the chief religion of Japan? 10. How many notes in an octave?

Shackleton Dies On Antarctic Voyage

busied himself securing stores and planned to proceed almost immediately to the ice barrier in search of Enderby Land. He retired to rest in the best of spirits but summoned the doctor during the night owing to a recurrence of the pains.

Another expeditionary doctor entered his cabin but before alleviative measures were possible, Sir Ernest died with startling suddenness.

Sir Ernest Shackelton was born at Kilkee on February 15, 1874, the eldest son of Dr. Henry Shackleton. He was educated at Dulwich College, and went to sea in the Merchant Service and was formerly a lieutenant in the Royal Naval Reserves. In the National Antartic Expedition in 1901 he served as Third Lieutenant. Returning, he became secretary and treasurer of the Royal Scottish Geographical Society from 1903 to 1906, when he contested the Dundee Constituency.

He commanded the British Antarctic Expedition of 1907-09 that reached within 97 miles of the South Pole, and also commanded the famous expedition of 1914-1916. He was the recipient of decorations from several countries and was dubbed a Knight in 1909. He was the author of The Heart of The Antarctic and The Diary of a Troopship.

His last expedition left England only a few months ago. It created even more than usual attention because of the contest among Boy Scouts for the honor of making the trip with him. Two Scottish Boy Scouts were chosen and were on board the Quest.

BORAH AGAINST DEBT EXTENSION

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 30.—At the Senate today, Senator Borah declared that the most powerful influences in the United States and abroad intended that the Allies' debt of $11,000,000,000 to the United States should never be paid. He added that it was his conviction that if the American Debt Commission were authorised to extend the time of payment of interest for five or ten years, the result would be that the United States would be making additional loans to the debtor nations at a cost to the American taxpayers.

MOTOR VESSEL GOES ON BEACH NEAR FOOCHOW

The motor ship Vigan, carrying mill supplies for the China Import and Export Lumber Company, had trouble with her engines and had to be beached on Haitan Island, 28 miles from Foochow, last Friday night, according to word received by the lumber company's offices here. So far as is known the crew and vessel are safe, though she has experienced such rough weather that the Admiral Line steamer Wenatchee, which went to her assistance, was unable to get near or to launch boats. It was expected, however, that the Tungus, another ship chartered by the China Import and Export Lumber Company, would be able to pull the Vigan off the reef late yesterday or today.

When the Vigan was reported in trouble the U. S. destroyer Hart, which was at Amoy, was sent to her aid, but had to give up the cruise owing to failure of the fuel oil supply. The Hart wirelessed the Wenatchee, en route to Shanghai from Hongkong, and the latter went to the Vigan's assistance. The Wenatchee stood by for eight hours, during which time the weather was so bad that she could not launch her life boats.

The Vigan sailed from Shanghai January 17. The vessel is of 1,000 tons and was built in Shanghai during war time. Her owners are The Compania Naviera of Manila and she has been regularly on the run between Shanghai and Foochow, carrying lumber and mill supplies.

Peking Teachers Given Worthless Cheques By Govt.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, January 27.—Teachers of the eight Government schools in Peking finally received cheques amounting to $220,000 for their arrears of salary yesterday only to find on presentation of the cheques at the bank that they would not be honored. At the bank the teachers were told that the cheques could not be cashed as the Ministry of Finance had no deposit to cover such a sum.

Peking, January 27.—The contemplated loan of $14,000,000 to tide the Chinese Government over the New Year has been secured and the government is in receipt of the money which it obtained at the rate of 68.70 inclusive of interest. The unprecedented interest on the loan which this figure indicates was caused by the absolute necessity which the Government faced at this time of year.

The loan is to run for a period of twenty months, the Government paying at that time one dollar for every 68.70 cents which it has just received. The loan has been signed by the Government and the Chinese banks and is secured on the salt surplus.

Chinese reports indicate that the profit promised to the buyer of bonds of this loan and the security back of it have already caused the bond issue to be oversubscribed.

SOCIAL UNION TAKES RANK AS FAVORITE IN KIANGWAN CHAMPIONS

Derby Winner, Old Bill And Thomas A' Becket Are All In The Running

Social Union, winner of The Derby yesterday, Thomas A' Becket and Old Bill probably will be the outstanding favorites today in The Kiangwan Champions, the big event of the New Year Meeting. In addition to these, however, other contenders who may have to be reckoned with in the big race are Bright Folly, Western Union, Altimeter and Hakone.

The Champions Sweepstake will be run as the eighth event of today's card of eleven races, probably about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. It is fairly assured that not less than fifteen ponies will face the starter for the event.

STANDS CROWDED

Another immense throng braved the mid-winter chill yesterday for the second day of the meeting and while the track continued to be soft and heavy and times recorded were far above track records the big gathering was rewarded with an exhibition of racing of the first order.

With few exceptions the favorites ran in accordance with expectations and in general dividends were but of moderate size. One exception in particular developed in the third race, the Zero Cup which was won by Bright Folly with Mr. J. K. Brand riding. The finish of this race was one of the closest of the day as Bright Folly passed the judges a scant head in the lead of Twenty-two Carat, which was ridden by Mr. Springfield. For place in this race Twenty-two Carat paid $131.70 which was the record dividend of the day.

OTHER SURPRISES

Two other surprises of the program came late in the afternoon, one in the tenth race when Lavington, ridden by Mr. Bauld, finished second behind Kashima and paid $61.80 for place. In the last race of the day in which Nationalist figured as long favorite Tyneside, ridden by Mr. Brand, took first place paying a dividend of $72.30.

Yesterday's main event, The Derby, was staged as the fifth race of the program. It brought out a field of eighteen starters and proved to be a contest that held the tense interest of the crowded stands from start to finish. At the beginning of the race the Winsome and Hasty griffin The Robin, with Mr. William Hill up went out into first place and with San Down, ridden by Mr. Knoll, set the pace for a closely bunched field nearly through the back stretch.

As the field swept toward the turn leading to the home stretch The Robin began to fall back and Social Union with Mr. C. R. Burkill riding, followed by Great Eastern, with Mr. Mackay up, and Finchfield with Mr. Heard in the saddle went out into the lead. Half way down the stretch it was apparent that Social Union had the race by many lengths. Great Eastern finished second and Finchfield third.

Shanghai Beats Hankow At Rugby 15 Points To Nil

Team That Shanghai Feared Too Weak Easily Wins Match

(Reuter's Service)

Hankow, Jan. 31.—In an interport rugby match played here today Shanghai beat Hankow by 15 points to nil.

The fifteens lined up as follows:

Shanghai—Fullback, R. B. Gotch; three quarters, H. W. P. McMeekin; F. L. Wainwright, W. Webster, H. L. Gibson; halves Rev. C. E. Spencer (Capt.), M. E. Columbine; forwards, S. H. Lewis (vice Capt.), J. Snodgrass, A. Hutchison, J. R. Harder, A. Jenkinson, H. E. D. Adams, A. E. Seddon, R. Miller.

Hankow—Fullback, Middleton; three-quarters, Phillips, Lowe, Bryceson, Bryson; halves, Hutchison, French; forwards, McIntosh (Capt.), Smith, Humphreys Tweedie Bailey, Hunter, Archibald, Sutton, and reserves Murray Kidd, Monbaron, Lacey.

Hankow won the interport rugby match with Shanghai in 1921, and it was feared while the selection trials were being held here that they might turn the trick again this year, for the teams of Probables selected here for tests failed to show the proper combination expected of an interport team.

And then when the best lineup was decided upon it was found that many of Shanghai's strongest players could not get away for the game. Other substitutions were made and the team was sent with a trust in their rugby knowledge and general aggressiveness. They evidently lived up to the best hopes held out for them.

The rugby team remains over in Hankow until Friday. Six of the fifteen are listed to play on the Shanghai hockey interport team against Hankow today. They are Messrs. Columbine, McMeekin, Wainwright, Seddon, Gotch and Rev. C. E. Spencer. The rugby men are programmed to return by boat to Nanking, thence by train to Shanghai, arriving here Sunday evening.

FOOTBALL CLUB RETAINS MARINE ENGINEERS CUP; ENGLAND DEFEATS SCOTS

Holidays Furnish Fine Sport; But Two Matches Were Played

Holiday football was absolutely according to form, in spite of several factors which might have reversed the expected order of things.

The Football Club on Saturday with a changed lineup that had a strong appearance of a second division eleven came through in their match with the Engineers for the Challenge cup, repeating their win of last year, by a score of 3-2, and retaining the trophy for another year.

In the International match on Monday Barnes and Goldman each notched goals for England in a scrappy game filled with brilliant individual efforts on the parts of players of both sides. The first half was scoreless though either team threatened often. The final score was England 2, Scotland 0.

YOUNGSTERS BEAT ENG'RS

The Club team which beat the Engineers on Saturday was almost solidly composed of younger men, from the second eleven. Club supporters at first glance were fearful that those who selected the team had not selected wisely. But the youngsters played the strong Engineers to a standstill, taking and losing the lead in turn in a nip and tuck game, until the final count was told, and they found themselves winners at a score of 3-2.

The Club pressed consistently from the first, only bad fortune let the game go almost to half time before they scored. The Engineers were playing listlessly, though when seriously threatened managed to buck up in defense. From a scrimmage in front of goal, after Goldman had made a beautiful try Koning rushed the ball into the net for the first score. Norris equalised soon after with a nice shot. The second Engineers goal was m'skicked by Weeks into his own net. Goldman equalised again on a second try at a blocked free kick, and soon with Koning passing up to him brought the score to 3-2.

The Engineers played better football in the second half. The combination of the Club's first line

PROTECTION OR NO TAXATION IS ICHANG'S SLOGAN

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Jan. 28.—General Wu Pei-fu's salt taxation scheme in Hupeh is still being defied by the salt merchants of Ichang who refuse to pay the additional military tax imposed upon them for transportation from Szechuen into Hupeh. The surtax of $1 per picul has been an outstanding question since General Wu's departure from Ichang for Loyang and has been the greatest obstacle toward peace between the provinces of Hupeh and Szechuen. The grounds for the resistance of the salt merchants is no protection, no taxation.

The salt trade guilds of Ichang and other Szechuen ports have filed a complaint with the Tuchun of Wuchang to the effect that if militarists expect to raise money through military taxes they should first of all adequately protect the salt merchants. At the present time Szechuen salt dealers have been exposed to all sorts of insecurities and danger on the upper Yangtsze as their junks are constantly at the mercy of bandits who rob them and hold the cargoes for ransom with complete immunity. Absence of official protection is a constant menace to the trade.

This attitude on the part of the salt merchants' guilds has been communicated to General Wu Pei-fu at Loyang with the result that the High Insnecting Commissioner of Hupeh and Hunan has become incensed at such an insult to his authority. He has consequently ordered his agent in Hupeh, Tuchun Hsiao Yao-nan, to adopt severe measures in dealing with those salt merchants who stand out in their refusal to pay his military surtaxes.

Tientsin Wins At Ice-Hockey

Peking, Jan. 22.—Tientsin's star ice-hockey seven although weakened by the absence of A. H. Mackay, their rover, won two games here this week end, one from the Peking Ice-Hockey Club last night and the other from the American Marines this morning. The score of the Saturday game was 3 to 1, while in this morning's contest Tientsin made two goals against none by their opponents. Both games were played on the rink of the Peking Club before large crowds. The American Marines attended the matches in considerable numbers, and their "rooting" for the home team was a feature of both matches.

Shantung Question Near Solution; Harding To Aid

intends to evacuate Russian territory much sooner than is indicated by surface facts it is believed that the United States government possesses satisfactory information to that effect and it is violating no confidence to say that Secretary Hughes, as Chairman of the American delegation and representative of the United States expects Japan to make good her pledge.

PEKING DENIES IT

Washington, Jan. 30.—The definite reports that an agreement has been reached on the Shantung question are authoritatively denied from Peking. It is known here that the Hughes-Balfour proposals are now before the Chinese and Japanese governments, but these are said to be unsatisfactory to the Chinese, since they do not provide for a surrender of control of the railway by the Japanese. The Chinese authorities in Peking repeat that the delegation here has instructions not to yield or compromise on the essentials.

In official American and British quarters the statement is made that a settlement is certain, but it is felt that if the Chinese remain firm a settlement is dubious and unlikely unless the Japanese yield completely.

Present efforts are being directed toward an adjustment of Japan's demand for some sort of control over the management of the railway pending the purchase by China. The Shantung question remains the chief stumbling block to an easy adjournment, since the agenda is completed with the disposal of the Siberian and mandated islands questions.

The resolution on the question of an arms embargo to China is not expected to consume much time, leaving the Shantung railway question the chief point at issue unless there is a protracted fight over the twenty one demands, which is improbable.

There are persistent reports that the Chinese delegation is prepared to go away without signing any of the treaties, but this cannot be confirmed. Spokesmen for the delegation say that everything depends on the outcome of the Shantung question.

LAST BARRIER PASSED

Washington, Jan. 30.—Details of the proposed Shantung settlement have been forwarded to Peking by the Chinese delegation and with this barrier passed the American authorities now express the hope that unless unexpected difficulties arise the Conference will be able to announce a final agreement next week.

It has been learned that Berlin officials have expressed surprise and dismay over the reports that America does not intend to take part in the Genoa conference, as German opinion leans to the belief that America shares England's more lenient attitude toward Central Europe.

The White House denies a report from London that President Harding twice denied the request of Ambassador Jusserand, of France, for an audience.

LOOKS FOR RENEWAL

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Jan. 31.—In the House of Peers today, the Premier, replying to interpellations dealing with the agreements from the Washington Conference, said that the Government hoped and trusted that when the terms of the agreements expired, the world would be provided with stronger guarantees for peace.

Count Uchida said that the Quadruple Agreement must be regarded as a significant success, having prepared the way for closer co-operation with America in the cause of international peace.

Questioned regarding the possible disadvantageous position of Japan on the expiry of the Agreement, he said that the desire for armament restriction and peace underlying the agreements led to the very reasonable belief that such useful instruments would be renewed in an improved form.

AWAITS ONLY PHRASES

Washington, Jan. 31.—The Chinese and Japanese delegates have reached an agreement on all the principles involved in the return of Shantung to China. It was stated last night that only the details and phraseology of the Treaty remained to be worked out.

SETTLEMENT IS NEAR

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 30.—Indications point to the imminence of a settlement of the Shantung question, in which connection the Chinese and Japanese delegates have resumed their conversations.

The Chinese delegates express the opinion that the prospect of a settlement of the Shantung Railway problem is to some extent based on advices lately received from Peking.

'WORLD DEMANDS IT'

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 27.—Reuter learns that the Chinese Government has received from the Chinese Delegation at Washington telegrams saying that the British and American delegations have informed the Chinese delegation that the world demands a settlement of the Shantung question.

The British and American final and specific proposal in this connection is that the Chinese Government should issue Treasury notes with a currency of fifteen years, redeemable after five years for the redemption of the Shantung Railway; that a Chinese Director-General of the Shantung railway should be immediately appointed; that under him should be a Japanese Traffic Manager, with Chinese and Japanese accountants; that after two and a half years an assistant Chinese Traffic Manager should be appointed to acquaint himself thoroughly with the working of the railway so that China at the end of five years could take over completely every portion of the railroad and retire if she wishes, all outstanding Treasury notes.

Moreover the details regarding mines, public buildings, saltfields, police and the rendition of the leasehold are now all worked out in terms satisfactory to China, the last remaining question being the railroad settlement, which the Chinese Government after exhaustive discussions last night, believes should be accepted, as the proposed arrangement is not the work of the Chinese or the Japanese delegation, but of the British and American as mediators, and seems fair and reasonable.

It is important furthermore to note that the rendition of Weihaiwei and Kwangchowwan will be carried out as soon as the rendition of the Kiaochao leasehold is effected.

Since however this cannot come about without a settlement of the railway question, it is strongly felt to be unwise to refuse this final Anglo-American plan and thereby alienate the sympathy of the English-speaking peoples, who would then declare that the Chinese were entirely unreasonable, thus harming the whole future of the country. This by no means throws a damper on the patriotic efforts of commercial and other organisations to collect funds in order to carry out the cash redemption of the railway.

If the funds are subscribed, good use can be found for this money in Kiaochao and preparations can be made to retire the entire Treasury note issue at the first available opportunity, that is, five years from the date when the last trace of this long dispute can be effaced.

'HIGHWAY ROBBERY'

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 30.—Describing the Twenty-one Demands as "an international highway robbery," and declaring that "as long as they remain in force it is farcical to speak of the integrity of China and the open door," representatives of eight Chinese civilian organisations who are acting as unofficial observers at the Pacific Conference today demanded their abrogation.

med with monkey fur. Looking over the city from a height gives the impression that there are as many pagodas in Soochow as there are houses built in the architectural style of the Mid-Garbage Period.

PAGODAS IN VISTAS

The most important pagoda in the city is the Peh Sze Tah. We climbed to the top up flights of typically Chinese stairs, stopping along the way to admire mural decorations composed of Buddhas in contemplation and signatures of American sailors. From the highest gallery we saw the city through a thin veil of sleet, its widest avenue looking as narrow as a yard of baby-ribbon. On a far-off summit stood the Tiger Hill Pagoda with a slant to its length likely to make the spectator wonder whether the fault is in the horizon or in himself. It is not often, even in China, that one sees a hill with its pagoda on crooked. Farther away was a pagoda around which Chinese witches hold a party every year. On this occasion the black art ladies of Soochow roll down over the rocks and briars of a hillside without even dislocating the flowers in their hair. Their annual exercises are witnessed by large crowds who seem to be in some doubt as to whether the ladies are trying to reduce their weight or have just joined the Holy Rollers.

Close to the site of the old Examination Halls are the two Ink Pagodas, erected long ago by a public spirited citizen who hoped to give the youth of the city better joss in their intellectual tests. After the building of the two shafts, however, the students flunked even more consistently than before. The donor of the pagodas couldn't understand the failure of his investment until a priest pointed out how futile it was to supply ink without a brush. The Soochow civic beautifier dug into his Liberty Bonds a third time and built a Brush Pagoda, after which the Soochow literati passed the tests like an Overland Limited going by Tanktown Corners.

In a birds' eye view of Soochow one is impressed by the number of small hills in the heart of the city. Though lacking in fire laws, Soochow has its own way of punishing carelessness. If several houses go up in flames the site of the building where the blaze started becomes the dumping-ground for all the burned-out neighbors. After trying in vain to clear his land of an ever-growing accumulation of ashes and unsavory food fragments, the unfortunate property-owner usually abandons his ground and lets a hill grow where his house used to be.

Soochow is one of the few cities near the Chinese coast where Buddhism is an active force. Here, for the first time since we came to the East, we saw a new temple in process of erection. Here also we saw a Buddha with a clean face and a shelf of life-sized genij who had been freshly gilded. The Sih Yuen Temple was as well-swept as if a typhoon had just blown through it and the electric bulbs that hung in the great lamps proved that the brothers of the adjoining monastery are bringing the establishment up-to-date. Devout Buddhists of the city gain merit for the next world by buying snakes and setting them at liberty. When we suggested that this snake-liberating habit is a bit rough on the neighbors, we were told that the reptile-merchant furnishes a place for the call to freedom and then recaptures the snakes for the use of other merit-seekers later on. We heard that since the passing of the prohibition amendment, there are rattlesnakes in America dated up for six weeks ahead, but we didn't know that a similar situation obtained in Soochow.

We saw a good many other sights during our holiday, including the City Temple, the Liu Gardens, and the Bridge of Fifty-Three Arches, but the things we are likely to remember longest are the twisted streets, deliberately built that way because evil spirits travel only in a straight line, the tangle of soupy canals, the gray, curling roofs seen from the top of the pagoda, and the ricshaman's playful habit of dragging his vehicle over half a dozen assorted stone steps.

Rubber Market Breaks In London

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 30.—The fall in the price of rubber below nine pence, despite the reduction of stocks in London from 69,000 to 67,000 tons, is attributed to fresh liquidation in the London market, and a sharp break in Singapore, where free offerings are reported.

PRINCE AT POLO WINS HEARTS OF HYDERABAD FOLK

(Reuter's Service)

Hyderabad, Deccan, Jan. 28.—Reuter's special correspondent with the Prince of Wales telegraphs:

The Prince of Wales will leave here this evening on the very crest of the wave of popularity which has swept irresistibly over the place. Ever since His Royal Highness's arrival, this great city has made holiday, the one palpable aim of the masses being to see the Prince as many times as possible.

One of the Nizam's leading ministers of state informed Reuter's special correspondent that he attributed the enthusiasm of the populace wholly to the Prince of Wales' personal powers of appeal. "We purposely left His Royal Highness as free as possible" he said, "in order that he might get to know the people and let the people get to know him in his own way. Our program has been exceptionally free from official engagements.

HEARTS ARE POLO GOAL

Probably the Prince has won more hearts on the polo ground than he could have done in a score of ceremonial functions. Our people are great sportsmen and nothing appeals more quickly to their sympathy than an active interest in their pastimes. When the Prince rode around the crowds at the Secunderabad review, smiling back their greetings, he stirred all the sentiments of loyalty to the depths.

"We in the Deccan now realise how true is all that we have heard about the magnetic charm of the Prince's personality."

The scene at an inspection of war-returned pensioners, ex-soldiers, police and heirs of men killed in battle, at Chadder Ghat Residency yesterday afternoon well demonstrated the truth of these words.

As a parade it was all very much like scores of such scenes during the course of the tour, but as a manifestation of popular enthusiasm the spectacle was really remarkable. Along the routes the police pressed back the pent-up masses. Not only were the house tops packed, but crowds assembled on hills up to a mile away to get a glimpse of the Prince. In fact Hyderabad has furnished a most striking commentary upon Mr. Lloyd George's telegram of congratulations on the success of the Prince of Wales' mission.

Opera Company Coming

Signor D. Alberti, formerly of the Municipal Band and active in local amateur opera production, is bringing a first class Italian opera company to Shanghai for a season in the near future, according to word just received here.

Signor Alberti, it will be recalled, gave much appreciated service in the raising of war funds here in 1917 and 1918, when he helped train and organise a group of local amateurs for the performance of the operas "Tosca," "Pagliacci," "Cavalleria Rusticana," and "La Fille de Madame Angot."

The Italian operatic company is at present in Manila and will reach Shanghai early in March. Included in the company are Chevalier Italo Cristalli, first tenor; Signor Pasquini, second tenor; Signor Pilotto, baritone; Signor Carozzi, first base; Signor Vallazzi, second base; Signora Vallazzi, Signora Corrado and Signora Levi; and Maestro Tagliapietra, conductor. Announcement of the opening date of the engagement will be made in due course.

Peking Syndicate Shows Big Deficit

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 29.—The Peking Syndicate report for the year ending June 30, 1920 shows that receipts, comprising interest on Chinese bonds and sundry investments, totalled £27,377 and expenditures, together with the previous debit balance, totalled £52,770 leaving a debit balance of £14,793.

The development of the Liteng area has been exceptionally satisfactory. Having regard to the higher average on the yield of Liteng coal and cheaper producing costs, as compared with the Jameisen pits, it has been decided to suspend for the present operations in the Jameisen pit the effect of which will be a considerable reduction in expenditure, immediately the suspension is complete.

Stormy Scene In House Over The Anti-Lynching Bill

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Jan. 27.—A stormy scene occured in the House of Representatives today during the debate on the Dyer anti-lynching bill and feeling ran high between Southern and Northern members.

A Mississippi cotton planter declared that so long as "black fiends" interfered with white women they would be lynched.

A Wisconsin member declared this to be an open advocacy of mob law, whereupon a crowd of negroes in the galleries rose and cheered lustily.

The Democrats shouted "shut up" and "niggers in galleries." Finally the Sergeant-at-Arms was summoned and restored order.

NINE BLAZES OVER NEW YEAR; DAMAGE SLIGHT

Nine fires made up the China New Year record for the fire department. But little damage was done, a blaze at the Palace Hotel last Friday night causing the most damage.

Central Division handled the hotel fire. An accumulation of soot in the main flue from the kitchen was blazing and the fire was spreading to one of the store-room floors when the firemen arrived. The hotel staff was holding the fire in check with extinguishers. Floorboards were ripped up before water could be used.

Most of the other blazes were traced to firecrackers or stoves pushed to capacity for extra New Year chow.

The following alarms were answered by the department:

January 28—7:11 a.m. Cigarette factory at T210 Chungking Road. Firecrackers set fire to mat roofing over air shaft. Sinza division extinguished the outbreak, laying two lines of hose. Damage slight.

January 28—8:15 a.m. Matshed in bucket maker's yard off Yuenfong Road. Firecrackers ignited matshed. Honkew Division laid two lines of hose, saving a large quantity of old lumber in the yard.

January 28—1:34 p.m. Dwelling in country off Lay Road. Fire started in kitchen and when Yangtszepoo Division arrived, the roof was afire. Damage restricted to kitchen and small portion of roof. Cause—sparks from stove.

January 29—6:31 p.m. Small dwelling at YA28 Macao Road. Burning joss paper extinguished before arrival of firemen, from Sinza station.

January 29—10:35 p.m. Matshed off Pakhoi Road. Extinguished before Central Division arrived. Cause—firecrackers.

January 30—4:18 p.m. Shed off Fokien Road. Little damage.

The Fire Department was called to two outbreaks of fire yesterday. The first of these, reported at 1:49 p.m. originated at 457 Chekiang Road, where the firemen found the ground and first floors well alight on arrival. The fire spread to adjoining buildings on either side, a dwelling and a cigarette shop, and these were more or less affected by the flames. Insurance amounting to only about $3,000 was carried on the places.

The second call was answered by Hongkew division at 10:56 p.m. when an alarm was turned in reporting the People's Cinema on Jukong Road to be afire. It was found on arrival that some matting placed over a stove had taken light but was extinguished before the department got there.

Your Health Comes First

Good Health is your most valuable asset—its preservation should, therefore, receive your most careful consideration. An important point which should always be borne in mind is the fact that a great many forms of ill-health can be traced, directly or indirectly, to disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is wise, therefore, to keep these organs in healthy activity. When they show any signs of derangement let that reliable medicine, Beecham's Pills, be taken at once. Always deal with digestive ailments in time. They are far-reaching in their possibilities of mischief if neglected, as they too often are. And yet it is generally easy to keep fit and well and free from many debilitating ailments by the simple use of

GENL. LU COMES OUT AGAINST ALL FOREIGN LOANS

(Kuo Wen News Agency)

Hangchow, Jan. 31.—The following are extracts of a telegram sent out by General Lu Yung-hsiang, Tuchun of Chekiang, to the Peking and Canton Governments and to all the important organisations and individuals throughout the country:

"It appears that certain people are raising opposition against the Peking Cabinet and the Central Government. Though it is a comparatively easy matter to force an unwanted government out of office it is difficult to establish a new one. Such destruction of cabinets is only brought about by ambitious and selfish persons who can offer no constructive plans after they have wrought their destruction. Such acts are not done for the welfare of the people.

"Although the most important problems confronting us today concern military, diplomatic and financial matters, but few people have constructive few plans for these at heart. Their only concern is to look for and support that person who raises the greatest amount of money for that think that only such a person is fitted to form a cabinet.

"Those who form cabinets nowadays must necessarily borrow foreign loans. Personally I think that the cabinet which is unable to raise funds is the cabinet that is really working for the salvation of the country.

"My creed is that we should not borrow any more foreign loans and that all matters relating to finances of the country be open for public examination and discussion.

"These two beliefs, I think, are excellent medicines which can be used to save China. It does not matter who the next premier is, who the members of his cabinet are or to what party they belong, they had better ask themselves before taking up office whether they can accept and abide by these.

In connexion with the redemption of the Shantung Railways. Can we redeem these ourselves? Yes. All suggest redemption so let us work in this connexion. If we can redeem it, it will be a gain for us, if we cannot, we lose.

"Let those who have ears take warning for if there is any further attempts to sell China's rights, I will rise in opposition."

Japan's Share Of Boxer Funds May Educate Chinese

Interviewed yesterday by the committees, leaders of all political parties approved of the plan in question and declared that they would do the utmost to realise it. The committees are also in negotiation with the authorities concerned.

Football Club Retains Marine Engineers Cup

however was not to be denied. Koning, Nash and Goldman kept the ball going the right direction, while Ewing, De Man and Seredkin were strong on defence., McLean and Crawford did well for the losers. The play of the whole team was sound but without team work, and consequently without results.

ENGLAND WAS STRONG

Both England and Scotland took a long time to warm up on Monday, several of the players having figured in the Saturday's match and seeming a bit stale. Scotland opened with the wind behind, but failed to utilise it, several early chances being lost through offside, and though their forwards were working hard they did not open out the game sufficiently, nor was their shooting up to much, several possible chances going outside or over.

The English forwards attacked less frequently but opening out covered more ground and were always dangerous. The Scotch right wing was putting things across every now and then, but the line lacked cohesion.

When the second half began the fast opened-out game of the English forwards began to tell. The Scots' left wing was getting away too but several good passes were wasted, the ball going behind and over.

Barnes notched the first goal, and a first class goal at that, taking possession well, out he beat the whole defence and gave McLean no chance. The Scots woke up a bit and it was only fine work which held the lead.

The other English goal came from Goldman, rushing Wilson, the latter missed and Goldman had nothing in front but McLean and the goal, so he chose the latter and netted in good style. Barnes tried one more solo effort, but couldn't quite get clear, he led both the backs towards their own goal was close enough to hustle him and prevent his placing his shot which went straight to McLean's hands. A last effort from Laurie-Smith hit the cross bar, but Harris cleared and the whistle went with the Scots attacking hard.

The second half was a good game, exchanges being pretty even, and England won because her forwards wasted fewer chances; on the whole the Scotch forwards had more opportunities but couldn't handle them. For the winners, Harris gave a fine display in goal, one of his best. Isherwood was the pick of the defence, he broke up the strong right wing attack and feed his forwards in first class style. Ogden was most in the limelight among the forwards, his pace was terrific and he was shooting hard and passing well. Wade as usual kept the defence guessing all the time, continually making openings, in fact on one or two occasions he was too unselfish. Barnes was not consistently good, but when he was good, he was very good, and the defense daren't leave him alone for a minute, in case he had a good spell suddenly. Neither Goldman nor Deer were up to their usual form, they can both shoot better, but were feeling the effects of Saturday.

For Scotland the right back played fine sound football, he had the aggressive wing to tackle and broke them up time after time. Ewing at left half was perhaps the star performer of the team, his tackling was clean, and his passing accurate and he always backed up. Crawford was working head and feet all the time, but his work hadn't its usual snap and finish. All the forwards were good. Robertson was carefully marked by his old Police friends, but was playing a good game. Falconer showed up well in the first half, but was eclipsed by Laurie Smith in the second. Leslie and Knox played well together, but the defence was just too good.

Blame Railway For Dead Moplahs

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 30.—In the opinion of the committee consisting of a Government commissioner assisted by three non-officials, including a Mohammedan, which enquired into the asphyxiation of the 64 Moplahs last December, the ventilation van was defective. Similar ones had been used extensively without mishap.

The use of such vans was not objectionable and not inhumane and were undoubtedly justified in the circumstances although separate inspection of the ventilation was desirable.

The main responsibility for the failure of the latter was held to lie with the railway company. The police sergeant was guilty of negligence in having failed to note the condition of the prisoners during the journey.

Municipal Concert

BY GERALD ZALSMAN

The wish expressed a few weeks ago that we might soon hear the Smphony Pathetic by Tchaikowsky was fulfilled on Sunday. This wonderful work in which the composer expresses the most brooding melancholy was brilliantly played. This was the first rendering of "Allegro Congraria," and the quick tempo of the third part was rendered with remarkable energy, the last movement being calamitous.

This symphony will always remain the most profound of all Tchaikowsky's great works, because it ponders over the mystery of death and the futility of all human speculations. That one could follow all the composer's intentions thanks should be rendered to the conductor and his orchestra for the fine rendering.

The second part of the program contained the Reverie by Sererlabine, a delicate and poetical piece of music, and a boat song from the Volga for wind instruments.

The concert was closed with the overture "Prince Ygor," an opera left unfinished at Bowdin's death and completed by Rimsky Korsakor and Glazounor. It is one of the finest Russian operas.

For the first time during this concert the lights, except those above the platform, were turned off. The audience therefore sat in darkness, and was thus enabled to concentrate on the music itself. The concert was thoroughly enjoyed, but one would have expected every seat to be occupied.

Shuffling Of Posts In Austrian Cabinet Has Averted Crisis

(Reuter's Service)

Vienna, Jan. 27.—The political crisis has been solved by the Schocber Cabinet resuming office with some shuffling of portfolios.

Dr. Schoeber's re-election is due to the combination of the Christian Socialists and Peasants Parties against the Social Democrats and the Pan-Germans, following a heated debate in the National Assembly on the ratification of the treaty between Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. It was the Pan-Germans' fear that the treaty would lead to the federation of the Danube states, under the leadership of the Czechs, thus hampering eventual Austro-German union that caused the Cabinet crisis.

'Humbug' Says Chu Of Open Door Talk

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 29.—Speaking at a meeting of the Chinese students Mr. Chu Chao-hsin, Chinese Charge d'Affaires, alluded to the recent references to the open door as unctuous humbug, and declared that China was in the position of a joint at a sacrificial feast, the carvers of which were pretending to be actuated by the greatest goodwill towards the animal furnishing the chief dish.

Mr. Chu stated that he would like to see far greater facilities for the education and technical training of Chinese students in England, and suggested that the British Government should concentrate their efforts in this direction.

He also suggested that the friends of Chinese students, before sending them here, should enquire most carefully with regard to the facilities of study, because more of the educational establishments were now full. If they had better organisation in China, he said, they could insist on the authorities in England cooperating with them. The Legation, he announced, wished to smooth the path of every student and make his stay in England agreeable and profitable.

Tryout Is Given New 'Taikoo' Ship

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 30.—The Indo-China Steam Navigation Company's new steamer Kutsang made successful trials at sea today, averaging over thirteen knots in boisterous weather. She has returned to the Tyne to prepare for her voyage to Hongkong.

The vessel is 434 feet long, has a beam of 54 feet and a depth of 31 feet and carries 7,800 tons deadweight on a draught of 26½ feet. She was built to Lloyd's highest class with engines of 3,300 horsepower.

Urges Legal Code To Rule Collieries

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 30.—Senator Kenyon, chairman of the senate labor committee which is investigating labor conditions in the coal fields of West Virginia and Kentucky today recommended that a government tribunal regulate the coal industry under a code of industrial law enforced only by public opinion. Senator Kenyon's report held that both operators who are against employing union men and union leaders who are determined to unionize the industry were responsible for the disorders.

Twenty-Eight In Family Unit Arrived From Russia

J. E. P. Matthews, commander of the Royal Mail Liner Orbita, brought as passengers on his vessel "a village in itself." The "village" consisted of Troul Ostrovski and twenty-seven other members of this family. The immigrants are Russian refugees who are going to Akron, Ohio. For four years they have been in hiding in Budapest. The head of the family told Captain Matthews when he boarded at Southampton: "I have sixteen of my own children in the party. The others of the group are my three sisters and my brother and their families." Ostrovski is fifty-eight. The youngest member of his party was his three months-old niece Olga. His wife is dead. He added: "My brother has been in Akron for some time. He has told us what is required of immigrants to America, and I am sure we will fulfill the requirements of the rules that are applied to us.

MINERS' ATTACK ON CHAMBER CUT DISCUSSION SHORT

(Reuter's Service)

Johannesburg, Jan. 27.—The goldmines conference was virturally broken up at luncheon time today, by the adjournment of the workers' delegates, who after violently attacking the Chamber of Mines, intimated that no good purpose could be served by continuing the discussions.

Representatives of the Chamber emphatically protested against the termination of the conference before they had an opportunity replying to the charges, which they described as mares-nests.

The conference will meet on January 28 to hear the result of the proposals which the Industrial Federation may submit to the Chamber.

MEDIATION IS OFFERED

Pretoria, Jan. 29.—General Smuts has written to the employers and workers offering Government mediation in the strike and declaring that the issue does not concern the colour bar which is established on the basis of the Statuory Regulations and has never been threatened.

GENERAL STRIKE PLANNED

Johannesburg, Jan. 30.—The Chamber of Mines has offered to guarantee a ratio of at least one European to every 10½ natives, which is no alteration of the present practice, but its offer as regards wages etc. has increased the dissatisfaction of the strikers.

The Industrial Federation has arranged a meeting to discuss the proclamation of a general smmpathetic strike throughout South Africa. The Union Executives have appealed to their sympathisers to overthrow the present Government.

Since our last report the consuming markets have remained stagnant, and hardly any business has been done. London has been reported down to 10⅝d., but recovered this morning to 10¾d. New York is dull at 19½ cents. The local market is fairly steady, and there is no pressure to sell.

The weekly auction opened this morning to a fairly good attendance with a good demand. There was, however, a slight setback in prices as compared with last week.

Of the 718 tons catalogued 685 were offered and 506 sold.

A few lots of Awarded Standard Sheet sold at 37½ cents, one lot in cases fetching 38½ cents.

Far the greater number or lots, however, were withdrawn, as buyers only bid 37 cents.

Sheet equal to Standard and good average quality lots met with a good competition selling up to 37 cents, thus marking a decline of ½ cent.

Off Quality Sheet found ready buyers.

Awarded Standard 1st Latex Crepe changed hands at 37 cents.

Crepe equal to Standard shows also a decline of about ½ cent.

Off Color Latex was wanted.

Fine Brown shows a decline of about 1 cent.

Brown, Dark and Barky Crepes found ready buyers at about last week's prices.

Wu Pei-fu's Program

BY JOSEF W. HALL

HAVING attained his aim of forcing the resignation of Liang Shih-yi, therewith giving a severe blow to Chang Tso-lin's prestige and ending for the time being his attempt at dominance south of the great wall, Wu Pei-fu is called upon to bring out a constructive program. If the removal of Liang merely results in a continuance of this succession of impotent, Tuchun-bestridden and short-lived governments in Peking, the Chinese people will not thank Wu for bringing it about, and foreign publics will be inclined to regard his recent activities as but another exhibition of Chinese politico-militaristic horse-play.

Being under this urge, Wu Pei-fu is at a great disadvantage in practical politics compared to the purely opportunistic Chang Tso-lin, who has neither professed principles to goad him nor a conscience to detain him. The burden of action, which in China, even more than elsewhere, is always hard, rests upon him, while the privilege of obstruction, which in China is always pleasantly easy, is Chang Tso-lin's.

This is the delicate position in which Wu Pei-fu finds himself at the present moment. Wu has a single political idea, that of re-establishing the government and reunifying the nation through some sort of National Convention such as met in Philadelphia in 1787 and bound the American states into the Republic of the United States of America. Wu is practical enough to see that such a convention cannot normally be free of molestation by or subservience to the militarists. Therefore last summer he announced his doctrine of a nation-wide convention for the purpose of the establishment of a popular government, under the benevolent protection of a superior military force commanded by a patriot-general, a democratic militarist.

There is every reason to believe that Wu is perfectly honest in his intention to fill the role of protecting god of the infant democracy. Whether or not it is possible to establish popular government under the protecting wing of benevotent despotism is a problem of human psychology to which history gives no encouraging answer. We could wish that Wu Pei-fu's theory would prove workable. We believe that it is well worth trying—that even its trial and failure would be better than the continuance of the national-soul-destroying system of today.

Along with this difficulty in theory Wu Pei-fu is confronted with a monstrous difficulty in accomplishment of his scheme. Naturally he cannot move without the backing of the Tuchunal heads of the provinces. These men, from the wall to the Yangtsze, are now, in appearance, with him. They are pushing him forward. Chinese history since the revolution, has shown that when a man takes the leadership he places himself in a precarious position. The ever present jealousy and the over-developed oriental instinct of self-preservation inevitably and unconsciously unite the smaller fry to encompass the downfall of the one bigger than themselves. Every outstanding Chinese leader in the past decade has been eliminated in this way and not through defeat at the hands of his direct opponents. Therefore, the wheel of Chinese political fortune turns so fast that the occidental can with difficulty follow it. Of this psychology Wu Pei-fu is not ignorant. Because of it the announcement of his program is as fraught with danger of his political and military ruin as delay in announcement is with danger of his losing the popular confidence and self-respect. Wu Pei-fu is wisely seeking some smaller personage, less prominent to the winds that blow, to announce his program. But ultimately he will have to take responsibility for that program or let it die.

Perhaps it should be called to mind that the National Convention of 1787 in America was only the outward expression of that inner unity which had come among the American people through the sufferings of six years of desperate warfare.

And perhaps only after such an experience will China be able to call her National Convention.

But we would like to see Wu Pei-fu try, and we feel that Chen Chiung-ming of Canton would do nobly to back him!

Love Turns The Knob

BY S. E. KISER

Love knocked at the door of my heart, one day
When cold rain dripped from the caves;
The sky was sullen, the world was gray,
The larches were stripped of leaves;
Sadly I listened, and now and then
I heard the wail of the wind, as when
A wandering spirit grieves.

Love knocked at the door of my lonely heart,
And suddenly, all was bright;
The clouds that lowered spread wide apart,
My sorrows were put to flight;
The wild wind's meaning became a song
And all that lately had seemed so wrong
Was happily made all right.

I bade Love enter, and with him came
One smiling and young and fair;
Her dark lashes dropped when I asked her name,
And a mist was upon her hair;
Sweetly she said she had seen my ad;
She had coaxing ways, and her look was glad
When I hired her then and there.

Love has left me, and closed the door
That was opened beneath my vest;
She is gone, she answers my call no more,
I am troubled by sad unrest;
She eloped with the son of the chief last night
The old man's raging, and spouting spite,
And I'm quitting at his request.

Prisoners At The Bottom Of The Sea— Stories Of Escapes From Disabled Submarines

Some time ago THE CHINA PRESS printed a despatch from New York concerning the escape of the officers and crew of the American submarine, the S-48, after it had plunged to the bottom of Long Island sound, near Bridgeport, Connecticut. Now we have the story—and a thrilling story it is—of Lieutenant Commander Walter Stanley Haas, senior naval officer on board, describing the experience of himself and his men through what must have been an awful ordeal. His plain story of the event, more graphic in its simple recital of facts than any embellishments of a word painter could make it, follows:

"We left Bridgeport about 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, with New London as our destination. About 10:30 we were near the middle of the Sound and decided to try a quick dive. We secured the conning tower, and the men scattered to their various compartments. I was in the control-room with Captain Joseph E. Austin, operating commander for the Lake Company, the builders of the submarine.

"One control wheel operates approximately thirty valves, opening the flood valves and closing the vents so that 193 tons of water are let into the side tanks by the one movement of the control wheel.

"We went down fast, and we were no sooner under than I knew by the great pressure in my ears that something was wrong. There came cries from aft, and the men came rushing forward. The water was rushing into the engine room in such volume that the last man out had to swim in water up to his waist to reach the door, which was then slammed close and securely bolted.

"The only place the water could have come from, the way I figure it, was through the manhole between the engine-room and the ballast tank. Two large bolts ordinarily hold that manhole cover down. The manhole is used as an entrance for getting from the engine-room into the ballast tank to clear the latter.

"The men got forward into the control-room just in time, or they would have been drowned like rats in the after-compartments.

"We closed the vents at once, but the water still came into the engine-room. The pressure from without apparently held the valve open despite the fact that the handle in the control-room had been moved to the closed position.

"With the after-compartment flooded, the only solution was to get the bow up and get the torpedo tubes out of the water. We dropped both anchors to the bottom to relieve the boat of their weight, blew all the oiltanks overboard under the battery compartment, and put a crowd of men at work bailing out the lubricating oil-tank, which was temporarily filled with water.

"They bailed eight tons of water by hand, throwing it into the bilge, from which it was then pumped out by the low-pressure pump under the control-room. We blew the forward trimming-tanks, and shot out the dummy torpedoes with boards attached, on which were written messages telling of our predicament.

"The ventilation valve between the engine-room and the control was leaking badly. We ripped down the sheet metal ventilation and braced the valve with shorings, torn down from forward.

"THE ODOR OF GAS"

"About this time there came the odor of chlorine gas. The battery deck was immediately torn, and six men with teacups were set to work bailing out the water. They threw it into the control-room and it ran to the pump-room, where it was pumped out by the low-pressure pump.

"Despite all our efforts the water kept coming into the battery-room. Finally Electrician Fritz cut a piece of small rubber tubing into short lengths. The men got down on their knees, sucked the acid from beneath the batteries until they got the water running through the tubing, and thus siphoned the water out, stopping the generation of the chlorine gas."

"About three o'clock in the afternoon our case seemed hopeless. Chlorine gas was almost suffocating us. We decided to risk everything on one last attempt to raise the bow out of water. Accordingly, as a last resort, we used our supply of air to force the water from the after-main ballast tank. We blew out enough of it to get the bow above the water."

Haas then told of Pete Dunne, one of a score of volunteers, being pushed up through the torpedo tube, of how Dunne fell into the cold water, but clambered back to the slippery hull, of how the youth shouted back down the tube that the bow was about ten feet above the water.

Dunne crept back into the hull to get dry clothes. Other men took his place. They burned scores of blankets, mattresses, clothing and other inflammable material, and finally attracted the attention of a Standard Oil tug, the Socony.

"The grim experience of the submarine S-48," writes Professor Carroll Storrs Alden of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, "suggests the marvelous escape of the AL-4, one of the American submarine force based on Bantry Bay, Ireland, during 1918." In a pamphlet called "American Submarine Operations in the War," prepared by Professor Alden, and reprinted from the United States Naval Institute Proceedings, the AL-4's fight for life is told. To quote from this record:

She was at the time thirty miles from Small's Lighthouse on the west coast of England, and according to the usual program of the morning patrol she had been running for some hours thirty or thirty-five feet beneath the surface conducting a listening patrol. The commanding officer, Lieutenant Lewis Hitchcock, Jr., U. S. N., who had been on watch during the latter part of the night, was getting some rest, and the next in rank, Lieutenant K. R. R. Wallace, U. S. N., had for two days been turned in, sick with "flu." This left Lieutenant Hulings as officer of the deck.

The sea being smooth, the depth was easily controlled; but the officer of the deck noticed that when they stopped to listen the boat would settle, indicating a slight unbalance and negative buoyancy. Whereupon he went through the procedure of adjusting the trim.

"Blow 300 pounds from adjusting overboard," he ordered, and knowing that there was a green hand at the adjusting pump valve manifold, he stationed himself beside the gage to see that he blew out only the amount directed.

The man repeated the order, but putting his hand on the wrong valve, opened not the adjusting but the auxiliary kingston. Hulings, looking at the adjusting tank gage, saw no change, and as he knocked it with his hand it did not move. Meanwhile no one noticed that they were taking in more ballast.

The officer of the deck then stepped to the air manifold to see what was the air pressure. That was all right, but it still did not affect the adjusting. As the boat was continuing to settle, he thought by speeding up to regain control.

"Batteries in series," was the order. And not having overmuch confidence in the electrician, who was another inexperienced man, the officer stepped into the engine compartment to supervise the shift from "parallel to series," and ended by making the shift himself.

"She's settling fast," called the man in charge of the diving rudders, and his tone told unmistakably that in the settling there was something wrong.

Hulings sprang back to the operating compartment, and saw the depth gage whizz past 100 feet. He now gave orders to go ahead full speed, hoping by the diving rudders to check the descent. But this seemed to send her down all the faster, and before anything could be done to stop her she struck bottom at 294 feet. Heavy with 1900 pounds of negative buoyancy, she had buried her nose in the soft mud.

"Stop both motors and secure everything," was the instant order, and Hulings went to notify the commanding officer. But Hancock had heard the motors speeding up and felt the boat strike bottom. Not waiting to be called, he had come to take charge. A minute later, Wallace, who because of influenza, attended by high fever, had not been out of his bunk since leaving port, appeared.

Hancock had a short conference with his officers. At 100 feet more than their safe depth, half buried in the mud, they were admittedly in a dangerous situation. But all was calmness on the part of officers and men. Some of the latter off watch had been awakened by water coming in around the three-inch gun, but others were still asleep.

Putting their best men on the diving stations, they tried the safest measures first. They thought to bale the water out of the big tanks by transferring it from the auxiliary to the adjusting tank and then blowing it overboard. The adjusting tank was unusually strong and had been designed for emergencies. This expedient they tried two or three times, but without success. They filled the tanks, but they could not overcome the greater pressure outside so as to blow them.

As now there came reports of leaking at various points, one officer was directed to go forward and aft and constantly make inspections. He found that especially in the engine-room the boat was leaking noticeably around the rivets, plunges, seams, sea valves and stern glands (through which the propeller shafts run). The hatches were also leaking slightly.

Since the attempt to blow the adjusting tank was only increasing the pressure of air in the boat, this was stopped. They then tried to release the air by running the air compressors, but again they failed because of the excessive sea pressure. So the compressors were secured.

At this point, as the man at the bow rudders tried them, he discovered they could not be moved for they were buried in the mud. There was the possibility that the boat might be broken out by going ahead or backing on their motors. This they tried next. They went ahead, 600 amperes on a side (series on each motor). Then they backed full speed. They tried going ahead with rudder hard right and then hard left—every eye glued on the gages, except those watching the gyro compass. She would move about 5°, but no more. They tried alternately backing full speed on both motors, and backing one while going ahead with the other. Discovering that they were using up electric power and making no progress, they desisted. Meanwhile the main pumps had been put on the duct keel for pumping out the main ballast. They pushed out perhaps a few pounds of water, but it was evident the pumps were feeble against the enormous sea pressure.

Again it was decided to try the motors, and at the same time to blow the bow ballast tank. As this tank was designed to withstand 90 pounds, they thought to apply only enough air to overcome the sea pressure, so as to put no more strain on it than necessary. When they attempted this, the air manifold relief valve blew off at 110 pounds. Whereupon they plugged the valve, and tried again, going ahead on both motors, 1200 amperes on a side.

"By Jove, I believe she moved," shouted one of the anxious watchers, who had his eyes fastened on the bubble that showed her balance.

A big argument followed as to whether she had, but the discussion was rather academic; for they were still in the mud on the bottom, and their situation was growing desperate. They had been lavish in the use of air and electricity, and the steady leaking was fast becoming a menace. The water had mounted to within four inches of the main motors. Whatever was to be done must be done quickly.

They had tried the adjusting pump on the adjusting tank without success. Again they had to return to the expedient of blowing the bow ballast tank, and this time they decided that their critical situation warranted their going beyond the limits of caution and applying sufficient pressure, no matter how great pressure might be required to blow the tank. But could the tank stand the strain? On this their lives depended.

ALL THE MEN MOVED AFT

At this point some one hit on a simple but effective means of changing the balance of the boat, by moving the living cargo aft. There were four officers and 26 men in her complement. All except the very few required forward for the next attempt were crowded back in the shaft alley. This required the waking up of some men forward, heavy with sleep because of duty through the night. There was a look of consternation on their faces as they were told why they had been aroused, yet everybody was calm. When all was ready they applied air pressure to the bow ballast, pushing it higher and higher, till instead of the safe 90 they had it at 140 pounds. At the same time they crowded speed on the motors. The boat had been resting at an angle of 2½° up. The bubble moved and the bow rose a little, but only a very little, for she was still in the mud, and even when the angle had changed to 5° she seemed loath to leave the bottom. However, at 6° she broke loose and started for the surface.

As now she was coming up at steep angle, the water in the forward part of the engine-room went rushing aft, where the men were. At this, thinking that disaster had finally overtaken them, they yelled out, "Stern glands have carried away!"

Hancock, hearing the report, ordered the electrician to put all the remaining force on the motors. This inclining the boat still more, brought her to an angle of approximately 50°, which was so steep that when the men in the extreme end of the engine-room tried to crawl forward they slipped miserably back in a heap.

When she had risen to 100 feet, Hancock gave orders to open the middle ballast kingstons for blowing. But the pressure built up in the tank was so great that it jerked the starboard valve open and broke one of the side blocks.

As they reached the surface and opened the hatches to let in the blessed air and sunshine, the AL-4 was a grateful and happy ship. For an hour and ten minutes she had been on the bottom at a depth, according to their gage, of 294 feet, which closely agreed with the figures on the chart, 300 feet.

It had been a testing of the submarine in every way. The middle and after main ballast tanks, which had been designed to stand a pressure of 75 pounds had been subjected to 127 pounds, without their leaking a drop into the battery tanks. And the forward trimming tank, built to resist a pressure of 90 pounds, had not suffered from 140 pounds. Best of all, officers and men, although conscious of how serious their situation, had given not the slightest evidence of panic or excitement. Of this Hancock noted in his War Diary, "Every man stood by his station in as calm and efficient a way as if an ordinary drill were being conducted." Lieutenant Wallace, who at the beginning of the day had been regarded as a thoroughly sick man, announced that he was cured; and apparently he was, for he did not go to bed or suffer any relapse.

Russia Is World's 'One Best Bet' Says Heller

BY CHARLES W. WOOD

Communist Russia is trying to establish capitalism. The Soviet Government is taking the lead. It is a Bolshevist plot. The Mensheviki and the moderates are bitterly criticising the step. But the Communists are determined. They have fastened their rule upon Russia, they are sure, to a point where there is no further danger of being overthrown, and they don't seem to care a hoot for anybody's criticism. They are going to establish capitalism in Russia—that's what—and no true Communist will interfere.

Is it or isn't it news? To tell the truth, I had begun to feel a little fed up on Russia myself when I ran across A. A. Heller the other day. Mr. Heller had just returned from a six months visit. He had the best of opportunities to study the whole situation. Furthermore, although he is a prosperous New York business man, his sympathies have always been with Russian Bolshevism ever since Lenin and Trotzky came into power. Partisan, you might say, and you would be right; but to understand certain situations it is necessary to go to partisans. If an ordinary business man had returned from Russia and said to me what Mr. Heller said I should have taken his statements with a grain of salt.

But Mr. Heller is an out and out Socialist, a member of the Socialist Party up to the time of the Left Wing split. His sympathies since then have been all with the Third International, and they are still. For some time Mr. Heller was associated with the Martens bureau in New York before the deportation of the "Soviet Ambassador." He continued after that to interest himself in the initiation of trade relations between the two countries, and went to Russia, at his own expense, to survey the situation with that particular end in view.

"Did Russia surprise you?" I asked him.

"It did," he said, "in many ways. No matter how interested in the subject an American may be, and no matter how accurate his sources of news, it seems to be impossible for a person in America to get the Russian situation clearly before his eyes. I was not surprised, of course, as much as the average business man would be, and certainly not as much as the dreaming idealist who has manufactured a country which he calls Russia out of his own suppressed desires; but there were a great many ways in which my conclusions had to be corrected.

"In the first place, I supposed that Russia's most urgent need was machinery—locomotives, rails, engines and factory equipment. The fact is that Russia today has more locomotives in running shape than can be put into commission; while her factories, so far from being destroyed by the revolution, have been kept as far as equipment is concerned in pretty good order. Still, they are only producing from 2 to 30 percent of the pre-war output. While it is not true that Russia needs no machinery from abroad, it is true that she has much more at home than her people are now able to use."

"What is the cause of that?" I asked. "Is it because she lacks industrial science?"

"No," he answered. "True, she does lack industrial science, but even that does not express her greatest, most urgent need."

"Well, what is her greatest, most urgtnt need?"

"Capital," said this Socialist.

No, Mr. Heller had not become a convert to capitalism. He declared himself as much a believer in Socialism as ever and he believes that the Russians have taken the right course generally.

"But modern enterprise," he said, "is impossible without capital; and this applies just as much to modern Communist enterprise as to enterprise of any other sort. Those who deal only in dreams and theories may not recognise this; but the Bolshevik Government is not dealing in dreams and theories. It is dealing with realities. It is dealing with events. And just because it is dealing with realities, it doesn't have to be forever justifying itself. It just goes ahead and deals; and the only justification it looks for is the justification which the eventualities bring.

"Industry is not stagnant in Russia, but it is at a very low ebb. The Communists know this and they do not pretend otherwise. They don't go in strong for Christian Science; and when the shops are shut down they don't believe that any statement to the contrary will set the machiney going. They ask instead why they are shut down and they have found the answer. They have found that there isn't enough capital at hand to keep them going; and—because they are dealing with events instead of theories—they have decided to let the necessary capital accumulate."

Russia Is World's "One Best Bet"

"And the masses are starving," I interjected, "because of the lack of money with which to pay the workers?"

"There are only two errors," he said, "in that statement. In the first place, the masses aren't starving. In the second place, money isn't capital. Russia is not a mystery and it can be understood, to some degree at least, if we are as willing to face the facts as Lenin and his Government have been. If we persist in not looking at the facts, of course we may do so but that won't hurt the facts; they will go on just the same.

"I said that the masses of Russia are not starving. I was not speaking then of the faming district in which, I am told, 25,000,000 people are facing a desperate situation; and I certainly do not want any word of mine to interfere with the work for Russian relief. But 83 percent of the Russian population is agricultural and the peasant population outside of the famine district is better off than it over was.

"It is true that they have not grown as much grain; but what they have grown they have largely kept for their individual use, and they have exchanged what surplus they did raise on terms which have been most advantageous to themselves. This ought not to seem strange. If the peasant were not better off than before the Communist regime, that regime would have been overthrown long ago. The peasant is not a Communist in theory. He is a realist. He has liked the situation in which he has found himself; and for that reason it has been impossible to start among the peasants any counter revolutionary movement."

Mr. Heller told me that he had visited scores of peasant villages, both near and far from the great industrial centers; and in peasant homes, he said, he frequently came across articles of luxury which were absolutely unknown in the days of Czarism. Peasant girls on Sundays were wearing silk dresses and were often bedecked in unfamiliar jewelry. Silk stockings were by no means unknown. Inside the simple huts he often came across walnut and mahogany furniture and great mirrors whose very presence seemed incongruous. No, they had not secured these things through looting the bourgeoisie; that is, not directly. They had sold food to the bourgeoisie, who had no other recognisable wealth with which to pay for it.

Mr. Heller, New York business man, had no particular tears to shed because of this rather grotesque change of fortunes. To a Communist it had no great social significance. It did not mean the establishment of a new order, and no permanent prosperity could be expected from any such situation. But as to the injustice of it—why, where did the treasures come from in the first place? Had they not been acquired by the aristocrats and bourgeoisie because necessity compelled the peasants and workers to toil for what they could get? Now the shoe was on the other foot. Old Man Necessity had swapped horses—that was all.

"But while the peasants individually have been thriving," said Mr. Heller, "they have not been producing food which could be used as capital. Capital, you see, is not money. Primarily, capital is food—all the necessities of life which workers in great industrial enterprises must consume this year while they are producing wealth which may be consumed later on. When money can purchase these necessities it may serve as capital, but unless these necessities are somehow saved for this particular service industry must be abandoned for lack of capital.

"In Russia this saving has not been effected. That is the simple truth of the matter which the Communist leaders are realistic enough to face. And looking at that truth squarely, they have hit upon a scheme of effecting such a saving. Russia, they perceive, has never been a capitalistic country; that is, it has been dominantly an agricultural country; and while there have been a number of modern factories there, industrial progress has not been general.

"When the Bolshevik revolution occurred the Communists understood very well that Communism could not be immediately established in Russia. In the world it could be, for internationally industrialism had been sufficiently developed; therefore the whole movement was international and depended, for its immediate consummation, upon a simultaneous revolution in one or more of the industrial countries. When this revolution failed to materialise the Bolsheviki, as usual, looked the fact in the face.

"It has been said that they 'abandoned Communism.' They did not. They could not abandon Communism, as there never had been any Communism to abandon. And they did not abandon the determination to establish Communism; all they did was to face the facts. Since no capitalistic country was ready to join their movement, the necessary capital to make Communism go in Russia would have to be created. Out of Russian conditions as they are, they eventually concluded, this capital would have to come. And so the Communist Party decided, about six months ago, to 'embrace capitalism.'"

Mr. Heller was quite certain that it was not a loving embrace. Every Communist in Russia, he was sure, would have preferred to have the revolution come in the other door. But it didn't; and so they are coaxing it in any way it will come.

"The Economic Front," he told me, is the watchword of the Russian Communists today. Build up an industrial system at any hazard. Never mind theories—face conditions instead. The world revolution is eventually coming, but there is no sign that it is coming just now. We are not abandoning our course, but the wind has turned and there is nothing else for us to do but tack.

"And the result," said Mr. Heller, "is that all Russia has changed again—seemingly over-night. It is today the greatest opportunity in the world for the capitalist; the situation can be compared only to America in the great days that followed the Civil War. That is when the big American fortunes were rolled up; and although the American Government was unconsciously capitalistic while the Soviet Government is consciously Communistic, the business opportunities are equally great. For the Soviet Government will greet incoming capital with an intelligent co-operation which was not possible here. Its leaders are all expert economists and they know what capital needs. They may not like capitalism in theory, but since they have set out to establish it they won't put a straw in its way."

"Until the world revolution comes?" I asked. "Yes," said Mr. Heller. "The Soviet Government makes no pretense of having abandoned that. If capitalism throughout the world breaks down, the political power of Russia will be intact to be used for revolutionary purposes. That power is permanent in Russia; the most violent enemies of the Government are now ready to concede that. It cannot be dislodged. It cannot be swerved from its ultimate objective. When the time comes, Communism will be established throughout the earth and the political power of Russia will be used in that day in behalf of organised labor rather than with the property interests. But at present Russia is the one best bet in all the world for capital. There are first class factories to be had almost for the asking. There is a wealth of natural resources waiting for any one who can furnish the capital to keep labor fed and clothed while it is being taken from the ground: and there is an industrious and intelligent population eager to be exploited at lower wages than can obtain in any other white man's country."

"And do you believe," I asked, "that capital will be attracted to Russia."

"Certainly," he said. "I don't see why not. Capital wants just one thing—big and certain profit—and Russia is the place to look for that."

"Until the day comes," I added, "for the final expropriation of the property owning class?"

"That should worry no real capitalist," said Mr. Heller. "Either one believes that capitalism will not break down or that it will. If he is sure that it will not, he has nothing to fear; for Russian investments will be absolutely safe unless it does. If he suspects that it may, a Russian investment is at least as good as any other. The transition to Communism, in fact, may be expected to be much less painful in a country which is expecting it than in one which is in the throes of a new crisis which it is in no position to understand."

TWO 535 SHIPS FOR PACIFIC MAIL

The palatial liners Buckeye State and Hawkeye State, sister ships, which have been operating between Baltimore, San Francisco and Honolulu via the canal for the Matson Navigation Company, will be returned to their owners, the United States shipping board, this month.

Officials of the Matson Navigation Company said that while they had not been advised officially to this effect, they had received reports that the two steamers will be taken over by the shipping board.

What disposition the board will make of the two vessels has not been determined as yet, the present operators were informed.

Operation of the vessels in the intercoastal passenger service has not been profitable from a travel point of view, it was stated.

Demands from leading ports of the United States, San Francisco included, have been made to directors of the shipping board for vessels of the 535 type. San Francisco, through the Pacific Mail Steameship Company, wants two more of the steamers for their transpacific trade.

The Hawkeye State is now taking the place of the company's own steamer, Matsonia, for a round trip to the Hawaiian islands She sailed from San Francisco for Baltimore on January 20, and it is believed this will mark her last voyage under the Matson flag.

The Buckeye State is at present on the east coast.

U. S. HAS 28,012 VESSELS

Washington, (By mail).—The tonnage of American vessels registered in foreign trade at the end of the last fiscal year was almost 11 times greater than in 1914, according to the annual report of the Commissioner of Navigation, made public recently, which showed a total of 28,012 vessels of all kinds, totaling 18,282,136 gross tons, under American registry on June 30 last. This was an increase of 1,958,114 gross tons, or 12 percent, over the preceding fiscal year.

Of this total, the report showed 5,951 vessels of 11,077,393 gross tons were in the foreign trade, 21,478 vessels of 7,163,136 tons in the coasting trade and 583 vessels of 41,600 tons in the fisheries.

Vessels built during the fiscal year numbered 1,361 of 2,265,115 gross tons. American ships lost during the year totaled 183,209 tons and those sold to foreign flags 116,572 tons.

The report showed that 48.3 percent of the seamen and officers below the grade of master shipped and reshipped on American vessels by shipping commissioners were American citizens.

American vessels equipped with radio at the end of the year totaled 2,978, compared with 555 in 1914, while the total number of radio stations of all kinds, excepting amateur stations, had increased from 10,355 in 1920 to 12,258.

Germany Pays 31 Millions As Agreed Upon At Cannes

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Jan. 27.—Germany has notified the Reparations Commission that she has deposited the second amount of 31,000,000 gold marks temporarily payable under the Cannes Agreement. The first amount was paid on January 18.

TELLS OF NEW TAXES
(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Jan. 28.—The German reply to the Cannes Conference's demands presented by the Reparations Commission contains a program of reform of the budget and note circulation and deals with guarantees and program of payments in cash and in kind during 1922. The reply points out that proposals are before the Reichstag to raise the coal tax from twenty to forty percent of the increase in consumption and to increase the property tax and other taxes as well as the Customs dues which will be levied on a real gold basis. The note promises that energetic measures will be taken against the removal of capital abroad and the evasion of taxation. It declares that railway passenger fares have increased 19 times, goods rates 30 times and postal and telegraphic rates 22 times as compared with before the war.

Food subsidies in 1922 will amount to only 1,000,000,000 paper marks as compared with 22,500,000,000 up to the present.

The note requests the reduction of the proposed cash payments and the increasing, if necessary, of the payments in kind and announces Germany's readiness to collaborate by all means in her power in the restoration of the devastated regions. Germany is prepared to conclude agreements regarding deliveries in kind with the other Allies besides France.

The note says that the restoration of the world's confidence in Germany's credit is a pre-requisite for the comprehensive discharge of reparations payments and expresses the hope that a way to restore Germany's internal and external credit will be found and a big reparations loan made possible by an international corporation.

LEVIES FORCED LOAN
(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Jan. 26.—In an important speech in the Reichstag on reparations and Germany's financial program, the Chancellor, Dr. Wirth, referring to the Allies' demand for the balancing of the budget said that when the new financial proposals had been voted, German receipts would total one hundred milliard marks as against fifty-five milliards last year.

He then announced the terms of the agreement reached between the different German parties, namely, a compulsory loan of one milliard gold marks bearing interest only after three years and intended to cover the budget expenditure for 1922, not relating to ports and railways; secondly, the tax on post-war profits to be abandoned; thirdly, the levying of a two percent business tax; fourthly, the raising of the duty on coal to forty percent; fifthly, the raising of the sugar duty to fifty marks per hundred kilogrammes.

The Chancellor concluded with a reference to and endorsement of Mr. Lloyd George's words regarding the need for the restoration of confidence between nations.

GERMANY'S BUDGET
(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Jan. 29.—The Imperial budget for the year ending March 1923 balances at 288 milliards of marks, including 187 milliards for the carrying out of the terms of the Peace Treaty.

GREEK SUES TO GET SHIPS HELD BY CONTROLLER

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 27.—A shipping deal involving £2,500,000 between the shipping controller and a Greek named Ambatielos was the subject of a motion in the Admiralty Court yesterday.

Ambatielos in July 1919 agreed to purchase from the shipping controller at the price named, seven ships then being built in Hongkong and Shanghai.

The controller took a mortgage on the ships as security in respect of a portion of the purchase money and in December last he obtained in a default action, an order for possession of three steamers.

Ambatielos now asked that the order should be set aside as he had already paid over £1,500,000 and pleaded that the controller had retained possession of two steamers and therefore on the balance the Crown was in his debt. It was ordered by consent that the motion should be adjourned till the trial of the action.

MAY ELECT FOREIGNER

Rome, Jan. 30.—The question of closer relations between the Italian government and the Vatican is expected to influence the election of a successor to the late Pope Benedict XV. Twenty-nine cardinals are reported favoring, twenty opposing and nineteen neutral in the matter of the selection of an Italian pope. Unless they reach a compromise it is believed there will never be much opportunity for the election of a foreign pope.

Dockworkers Also Walk Out In Hongkong Strike

(Special To The China Press)

Hongkong, Jan. 30.—Work on the docks is absolutely at a standstill and the outlook is more serious than at any time since the the seamen and firemen employed on steamships calling here went on strike.

Coolies who handle freight on steamers and on the locks stopped work this afternoon in sympathy with the striking steamship employes and they are to be joined by thousands of coolies who are not members of any labor organisation. It is estimated that the Cargo Coolies Guild has a membership of 8,000.

More than 20,000 men are now out on strike and after the Chinese New Year holidays, it is expected that other unions will declare walkouts in sympathy with the strikers.

Hongkong, Jan. 31.—With British shipowners making arrangement to secure Lascars, Japanese planning to substitute Japanese for Chinese crews on their liners and American steamers making arrangements to recruit Filipinos, no change in the strike situation is expected with the close of the New Year holidays.

Despite the strike of the cargo handlers on the locks, the shipowners believe that the strike is weakening and they look for a change in attitude on the part of the strikers.

Ship owners claim that they can operate their steamers without Chinese crews.

The Taiyo Maru, the largest vessel on the trans-Pacific run, arrived at Kobe on January 24 with the entire Chinese crew missing and Chief Steward Evans personally doing the cooking for all passengers on board.

All of the cooks and stewards went ashore at Hongkong on the return trip from Manila and refused to go back to the ship. Several Japanese cooks were secured at Nagasaki and a few at Yokohama.

Hongkong, Jan. 31.—Cargo coolies, with the exception of coal coolies have come out on strike in sympathy with the seamen.

Hongkong, Jan. 28.—After a meeting of the shipowners' committee yesterday evening, the shipping companies issued a statement declaring that they are willing to meet the seamen's delegates who are to be sent to the Colony to discuss the preliminaries for arbitration, which must be confined to the question of wages, no other matter having been under discussion.

The Blue Funnel liner Cyclops is leaving for England on Tuesday with volunteer naval ratings relieved from the China Station. Members of the crews of H.M.S. Magnolia, Bluebell, Foxlove and Hollyhock will man the steamer.

French Chamber Votes Boxer Fund To Banque

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Jan. 27.—The Chamber of Deputies today passed the bill for the rehabilitation of the Banque Industrielle de Chine.

The bill amounts to an authorisation to apply France's share of the Boxer Indemnity.

Both M. Poincare and the Finance Minister, M. de Lasteyrie, said that the Government would submit for the Chamber's decision all the results of the negotiations.

M. Guernier, reporter of the Foreign Affairs Committee on the bill, said that new men would be placed at the head of the Bank, which, he was convinced, would be in good hands.

Some criticism was passed on the ground that the operations of the Bank had been speculative and the taxpayers ought not to bear the consequences.

M. Bokanowski, the Reporter-General, stated that the present value of France's share of the Boxer Indemnities was 165,723,000 gold francs.

M. Poincare stated that if the Boxer Indemnity were insufficient, the French Government would not be responsible.

The bill consists of only one article.

TO SUBMIT DOSSIER
(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Jan. 29. — Premier Poincare has informed M. Leygues, President of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber, that he saw no reason why the complete dossier regarding the Banque Industrielle de Chine should not be communicated to the Committee, but he pointed out that though he was prepared to submit the whole administration documents, he was not entitled to communicate the contents of judicial documents.

The Government, he said, was not opposed to the renewal of the custom of publishing the proceedings of a secret committee, which had been suspended since last July, subject to the consent of the Allies to the publication of any diplomatic correspondence affecting them.

NO FOOD; RELIEF STILL INADEQUATE IN RUSSIAN FAMINE

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 27.—Sir Benjamin Robertson, the Indian Famine expert, reports by telegraph from Buzuluk that he found conditions in the Saratov and Samara provinces to be even graver than he had been led to believe.

Personal inspection of the villages showed that practically no food was left and relief was hopelessly inadequate. Whole households, especially adults, were literally dying of starvation. He testified to the devoted work of the "Save the Children" fund in Saratov province and by the Society of Friends in Buzuluk. The work was carried out in a practical and systematic manner, the food exclusively reaching those for whom it was intended.

Sir Benjamin Robertson recommends the systematic feeding of as many as possible of these adults, numbering ever 1,000,000 in these two areas, until the harvest.

Relief at present is confined largely to children.

Harding Is After Big Ship Subsidy

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 28.—The New York correspondent of the Daily Telegraph states that it is reported that President Harding has decided to ask Congress for £5,000,000 for ten years to subsidise the mercantile marine.

The only alternative to this, it is said, would be to sell the ships cheaply or to scrap them, owing to the unprofitably high cost of upkeep.

MOTOR BANDITS SLAY CASHIER IN RAID UPON BANK

(Reuter's Service)

Pittsburg, Jan. 27.—Five men entered the First National Bank in the suburb of Crafton today. They killed the cashier and forced the clerks and a woman customer into the vault. They escaped in a motor with $30,000 in cash and securities.

On encountering a car filled with detectives shots were exchanged, whereupon the robbers abandoned their car and scattered.

The bandits took refuge in a house in one of the principal streets and exchanged fire with the police. A large crowd watched the battle. The loot has been recovered.

The police finally secured three suspects, including a woman. The others disappeared. The promptitude of the arrival of the police was due to the resourcefulness of a woman clerk who pretended to faint but touched the burglar alarm as she fell.

May Bar Chinese And Hindu Doctors

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 28.—At a meeting of the Burnley Insurance Committee the Chairman and others objected to a panel doctor engaging a Chinese as assistant.

The clerk said that there was nothing in the rules to prevent it. A Councillor said that Hindus and Chinese were buying practices in the East End of London, taking panel patients, and that only a new act of Parliament could prevent them.

The Committee agreed to make further enquiries before admitting the applicant.
